BRITISH FORCES OCCUPY MADAGASCAR

SHARP NAZI ATTACKS FOLLOW R.A.F. RAIDS

Heavy Casualties Feared in Two South Coast Regions Bombed by Enemy—British Fighters Make Sweep Over Northern France After Assaults on German U-Boat Bases

LONDON, May 5 (Tuesday), (CP).—German raiders sharply attacked two British south coast regions early today, causing considerable damage, after an afternoon of bitter air fighting over Northern France yesterday.

British fighters, on a sweep over Northern France, encountered strong formations of German fighters and in the air battles which developed shot down seven enemy planes, a communique reported. Seven British fighters also were lost in the day's operations.

The Air Ministry communique also revealed that a German night fighter was destroyed during the R.A.F. attack on Hamburg Sunday night.

SHORT BUT FIERCE

The German raids this morning were short but fierce. It was feared there would be a number of casualties. Three of the German raiders were shot down.

Observers said the German raiders apparently were escorted by fighters

TAKES CARE OF WASTAGE

Ralston Says Canada Has Ample Reinforcements For Forces in Britain

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Defence Minister Ralston assured the House of Commons tonight that "ample" reinforcements now were in Britain to meet the scale of possible wastage in the Canadian Overseas Army as estimated by the War Office.

He was questioned on this by Conservative House Leader Hanson and by Captain G. S. White (Conservative, Hastings-Peterborough) during resumed consideration of the War Appropriation Bill resolution.

Mr. Hanson wanted to know definitely if, should the Canadian Army go into action in 1942—and he said that was quite possible—there were adequate reinforcements in England to meet possible battle wastage.

SAYS QUOTAS FILLED

Colonel Ralston said that so far as could be estimated by experts at the War Office, in consultation with the Canadian staff, quotas had been fixed for such reinforcements.

Those quotas had all been filled and would be filled as the necessity arose, he said.

Colonel Ralston was questioned throughout the evening sitting on many aspects of the war effort. He declined to make any forecast as to Government policy of future methods of raising men for the army and said that was, at present, under the jurisdiction of the National War Services Department.

But the minister said his advice was that the present age groups eligible for call-up under the Na-

CALLS FOR NEW INDIAN POLICY

Former All-India Congress Head Seeks New National Front

BOMBAY, May 4 (CP).—Chakravarthi Rajagopalachariar, former president of the All-India Congress party, called today for a new national front, a new national policy and a national army to combat the threat of Japanese invasion.

Rajagopalachariar made his appeal in an interview in which he condemned as futile the policy of "non-violent non-co-operation" which the Congress, India's dominant political party, recommended in a resolution Saturday.

Rajagopalachariar, who resigned from the Congress working committee last week said: "I am now free to hold views differing from those of the working committee and say the nation must get together to face current difficulties which the official policy of the Congress does not meet."

CRITICAL OF POLICY

That policy, he said, is merely one of "pointing out the faults of the British and other parties, plus a policy of war neutrality against Axis aggression."

"I must therefore work to make Congress change its policy," he added. "I must cultivate public opinion, as that policy depends upon public opinion.

"And since I realize I cannot achieve anything by personal negotiations with the Moslem League, I must convert the people of India to co-operation with the Moslems."

Rajagopalachariar said that "even an unarmed national army" would be better than the measures urged by the Congress party.

Says Germans Will Pay for Mass Murder

LONDON, May 4 (CP).—Professor Pieter Gerbrandy, of The Netherlands Government in London, commenting on today's announcement by the German-controlled Hilversum radio in Holland that seventy-two Hollanders had been executed, said tonight "The day will come when an account will be demanded of these murders," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

USING NEW WEAPON

MOSCOW, May 4 (AP).—The Germans are using a giant new trench mortar of 230 millimetre calibre, hurling a projectile which exploded with a force equivalent to that of a large aerial bomb, Red Star reported tonight.

COST-OF-LIVING INDEX UNCHANGED

Dominion Bureau of Statistics Reports Figure at 115.9 for March —Bonus Not Affected

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today its official index of living costs was unchanged April 1 from the March 2 figure of 115.9. The standing at February 2 was 115.7.

"All group indexes with the exception of home furnishings and services were unchanged between March 2 and April 1," the bureau reported.

Labor department officials said the announcement of the 115.9 figure for April means there will be no change in the existing cost-of-living bonuses for the three-month period starting May 15.

Japanese Nearer Chinese Border; Threat to India

General Chiang Kai-Shek Broadcasts Appeal to Prepare for a Prolongation of War—Enemy Is Now Within Twenty-Five Miles of Yunnan Province

CHUNGKING, May 4 (AP). — With China's Burma Road choked off and a Japanese column within twenty-five miles of China's frontier, General Chiang Kai-Shek told his people tonight: "We must prepare for a prolongation of the war and for greater difficulties in the future."

China's National Mobilization Act comes into effect tomorrow and the General asked the Chinese people to restrict consumption, intensify production and place all their resources of labor, skill and knowledge at the disposal of the nation.

BROADCAST APPEAL

Chiang broadcast his appeal to the people as three powerful Japanese columns pushing through Burma threatened to invade both India and China. The Japanese were within 150 miles of India.

The enemy had advanced sixty miles up the Burma Road from Lashio to smash at Chinese positions near Kutkai, but the scantily-equipped forces commanded by Lieutenant-General Joseph W. Stilwell fought them fiercely through the night, a communique said.

ROSTOCK RAIDS TOOK BIG TOLL

Travelers From Berlin Say Between 7,000 and 8,000 Persons Killed

NEW YORK, May 5 (Tuesday) (AP).—Between 7,000 and 8,000 persons were killed in the German Baltic port of Rostock which the R.A.F. attacked last month for four straight nights, the Stockholm correspondent of The New York Times said today in quoting reliable travelers arriving from Berlin.

More than 30,000 persons also are homeless, and many of the city's refugees are camped in the open because of a lack of Nazi welfare facilities, the dispatch said.

BERLINERS INDIGNANT

The "preliminary" figure of 163 dead so far released by the German Propaganda Ministry has caused much indignation in Berlin where Rostock's refugees have by now arrived in great numbers and are telling the constant tale of the city's destruction," the correspondent said.

Berliners were reported feeling uneasy and those with the right army or party connections were sending their wives and children out of the capital.

INTERNMENT CASE HEARD

Minister of Justice Tells House Why Wealthy Italian Freed by Government

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Justice Minister St. Laurent tonight told the House of Commons that James Franceschini, wealthy Italian-born industrialist of Toronto, was released from internment because ill-health rendered him unlikely to prove a danger to the state.

The minister said Franceschini's original internment was justified, but his release, ordered last Fall by the late Justice Minister Lapointe, was also justified.

After reviewing the case, Mr. St. Laurent said, he felt that any advisory committee studying the case would come to the same decision.

IN PRECARIOUS HEALTH

It was understood, the minister said, that unless he obtained surgical attention Mr. Franceschini's life expectancy would be a matter of days.

Discussion of the Franceschini case, precipitated by John Diefenbaker (Conservative, Lake Centre), was a feature of the debate which lasted all afternoon and part of tonight's sitting over the minister's resolution setting up a committee to review Defence of Canada Regulations.

The resolution carried unanimously this evening, setting up a fifteen-man committee almost identical with those which have functioned for the same purpose at every session since the war started.

FIRST FORMAL ADDRESS

Mr. St. Laurent was making his first formal address to the House since he entered Parliament early this year. He was applauded by all parties when he concluded.

The minister said there was no such thing as clemency in internment cases, because internment was not a punishment. Persons were interned to keep them from harming the state in time of war.

MAYHEW SEEKS ONE COMMAND

Member for Victoria Raises Question of Police Leadership in Emergency

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP). — R. W. Mayhew (Lib., Victoria) raised the question of police control on Vancouver Island in the House of Commons tonight. He said they had Mounted Police, Provincial Police and municipal police, all working satisfactorily together.

But if an emergency arose there would be the immediate question of police leadership, and that question should be settled at once in advance of a possible crisis.

The principle of single command was recognized in the armed forces and should apply to the police. Decision should be made at once as to who would control the combined police in the event of a crisis.

SUPPORT FOR RANGERS

He said there now were 8,000 volunteers in the Coast Rangers on Vancouver Island, a body being raised to help defend the Island in the event of invasion, and he wondered what support it would receive from the Government.

Mr. Mayhew said a great potential danger on the Pacific Coast was the scattering of incendiaries in the forests by a raiding enemy. Every last man should be organized for fire-fighting, said Mr. Mayhew.

BEAVERBROOK HOME

LONDON, May 5 (Tuesday) (CP).—Lord Beaverbrook, who had been in Washington on a supply mission for the British Government, was reported today to have returned to England.

GIVES STRENGTH OF RESERVE ARMY

Of 135,000 Men at February 1 More Than 80,000 Were Short-Term Draftees

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Strength of the reserve army at February 1 was more than 135,000, including more than 80,000 National Resources Mobilization Act thirty-day recruits on or supernumerary to establishments, said a return tabled in the House of Commons today for G. S. White (Cons., Hastings - Peterborough).

The number of men accepted for thirty-day training at training centres was 82,186. As at February 15, 11,950 men called for thirty-day training had been recalled for further training and home defence service.

As of February 5, men accepted for training under the four months' training plan numbered 41,077, this number including men who had received thirty days' training and subsequently were recalled for further training.

Of the first six classes called for four months' training and subsequent home defence service, 8,506 enlisted for overseas service.

Soviet Troops Take Offensive Suddenly On Several Sectors

Russia May Be Launching Own Spring Drive—Red Army Head Urges Ukrainians to Engage in Guerrilla Warfare Behind German Lines

MOSCOW, May 4 (AP).—For the first time in recent weeks, the Russians announced tonight that Soviet troops "waged offensive battles on several sectors of the front" during the day, indicating the Red Army might have got the jump on the Germans and launched their own Spring drive.

The midnight Soviet communique said the day's thrusts improved Soviet positions along the front.

This was the first positive official statement of Soviet gains since the announcements lapsed into brief assertions of "no substantial changes at the front."

For the last several days the Russian press has predicted that when a Spring offensive starts it will be by the Red Army and not by Hitler. The Fuehrer's plans for such a drive—already far behind his schedule on other European fronts heretofore—have been described here at Kuibyshev as converted into myth.

NAZI PLANE LOSSES

A communique supplement listed 264 German planes destroyed from April 26 to May 2, with Soviet losses given as seventy-nine craft.

THE TIMES, London

(Copyright, 1942, by Southam Co.)

LONDON, May 4 (By Cable).—The Allies have withdrawn from Mandalay, leaving the city "smouldering ruins." British troops are now fighting to the west of the city, while Chinese troops are on both banks of the Irrawaddy. The Japanese advance here is described as cautious.

According to The Times' Chungking correspondent, the Chinese continue to hold Taunggyi and are attacking in the rear Japanese columns which have advanced northward towards Lashio. This city, now in the enemy's hands, has been heavily bombed by Chinese whose forces in three months' fighting in Burma have cost their foe 3,000 men killed and wounded.

With Lashio gone, says The Times' correspondent, alternative supply routes for China, replacing the Burma Road, are not easy to envisage. The road under construction from India through Assam was intended to link up with the Burma Road at Lashio.

Until good communications with India are opened, Imperial forces cannot be adequately reinforced, says The Times' Calcutta correspondent, nor can adequate air support be given them. The airplanes themselves can readily be sent, but the problem is equipment. Loss of Rangoon has caused great difficulties in this connection.

It is now asked in Calcutta whether the Japanese will next assail Bengal, their nearest object, or attack Ceylon and Southern India instead. Bengal has numerous war industries, now being dispersed by the Government as a measure of protection.

The German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau did not escape heavy damage after all in their daring escape from Brest. Both are crippled, says The Times' aeronautical correspondent, and will need extensive repairs. The Prince Eugene is at Trondheim, also badly damaged by torpedoes of the submarine Trident. Both German battleships have now been useless for thirteen months, thanks to Royal Air Force attentions.

Berlin reports attempts by Nazi bombers against the Crimea perhaps as preliminary to an offensive there. The Russians' hold on the Kerch Peninsula has been the greatest irritation to the Germans all through the Winter. Plans for a Winter offensive towards the Caucasus were balked by Red Armies here. At present, the Nazis have strong forces of men, artillery and tanks in the Crimea, but the air forces are about equally matched. The Sevastopol garrison continues to attack its besiegers.

No Details of Operation Yet Made Public—London and Washington Issue Statements—Move Well Prepared—Sea and Land Force Used—Territory Will Be Held in Trust

Occupation Thwarts Japanese Move; Vichy Ambassador in States Advised

LONDON, May 5 (Tuesday), (CP).—A British sea and land force took the large and strategically important Island of Madagascar under the protection of the United Nations today to guard the vital sea lanes to the Middle East, India and China and to thwart Japanese designs on the island. A joint Admiralty and War Office communique announced British forces had arrived at dawn off the 1,000-mile-long island in the Indian Ocean off the east coast of Africa.

Whether the Vichy French were resisting the British surprise move was not announced, nor were any details of a landing. That there had been contact between the British forces and the French authorities in Madagascar was made clear in the British communique, which said the French officials had been informed the territory "will remain French and will continue to be part of the French Empire."

U.S. STATEMENT

Authoritative British quarters early today would make no comment on the statement issued by the State Department in Washington that the occupation had been effected and that it had the "approval and support" of the United States Government.

The importance of the island to the United Nations' cause has been emphasized for weeks and it was assumed the action had been well prepared and that a large force was in occupation, prepared to protect the island against any future aggression.

POUND JAPANESE BASES

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 5 (Tuesday), (AP).—Allied aircraft continued their pounding of Japanese bases on islands north of Australia yesterday with attacks on Lae, New Guinea, and Rabaul, New Britain, a communique said today. Fires were started and planes on the ground were hit, the war bulletin said.

VALETTA, May 4 (CP). — Axis raiders stabbed at Malta in three light raids today, loosing bombs which hit a refugee centre and parish church where casualties were inflicted. One plane was destroyed, a second damaged.

PATRIOTS FACE FIRING SQUADS

Seventy-Two Dutch and Fifty-Five Frenchmen Executed as Hostages

LONDON, May 4 (CP) — Rising anti-Nazi violence, spurred by the massive R.A.F. offensive against occupied Europe, has brought the usual grim German answer—death before the firing squad—to seventy-two Netherlanders and at least fifty-five Frenchmen in recent days, reports from the Continent said tonight.

The German-controlled Hilversum radio in Holland announced some of the Dutchmen, including officers, were executed "for attempting to gain contact with Germany's opponents."

WILL REPLACE FALLEN

Defiantly, Radio Orange, the Dutch station in London, replied tonight: "They will never keep our people down. For every hero who falls, ten are ready to take his place. We ask our people to protect the dependents of those who were executed. We are sure the heroes died crying 'Long Live the Fatherland!'"

Advices from occupied France said fifty-five French hostages have been executed at Lille, bringing to at least 777 the number of Frenchmen killed since the Nazis started sending hostages to the wall in reprisal for attacks on German forces in France. Details were not disclosed.

Japanese Incursion In New Guinea Again Ends in Withdrawal

Sizeable Force Marches Up the Markham Valley But Retires Before Meeting Defenders—Allies Ready for Eventualities

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 4 (CP).—A second incursion of the Japanese up the Markham Valley beyond the New Guinea mountains protecting Port Moresby again has ended in a withdrawal, Australian dispatches reported today.

The withdrawal occurred less than twenty-four hours after it was learned that a sizable force had marched up the valley to Nadzab, twenty-seven miles in the interior. Apparently the expedition was for reconnaissance purposes for no contact with regular Australian forces was reported.

A second Japanese column which had advanced southward kept its position seventeen miles south of Salamaua on the Coast.

Here the Japanese were separated from Port Moresby by 165 miles of jungle and mountains 13,000 feet high. Port Moresby is the key to shallow Torres Strait, across which the Japanese would have to move for an invasion of Australia from New Guinea.

TWO POSSIBILITIES

The Japanese may attempt to get advanced airfields on the southeast tongue of the island north of Australia or may try eventually to push through the formidable mountains separating their north coast bases at Lae, Salamaua and Finschhafen from Port Moresby on the south coast.

That the Allies are not taking

PATROLMAN WINS DUEL WITH THUG

Gun Battle at Oregon City Ends in Death of Burglar—Other Arrested

OREGON CITY, Ore., May 4 (AP).—A gun battle with a state patrolman today resulted in the death of one man and the arrest of another.

The dead man, killed by bullets from the gun of Robert Ragsdale, the patrolman, was identified as Raymond Fay Brady, thirty-nine, Imperial, Neb.

Ragsdale said his companion was arrested after a day-long hunt and was booked at the Clackamas County Jail as Charles Robinson, alias Charles Gardner, thirty-one, Imperial, Neb.

The patrolman said he was answering an early morning burglar alarm from a grocery store at Molino, near here. He discovered the men inside. They opened fire, then fled. Brady later was found wounded in a roadside ditch.

American Navy Man Given Up for Dead Going Back to Sea

Spent Twenty-Two Days on Raft on Atlantic—Memorial Masses Sung for Him—Located in Hospital and Tells His Story

HALIFAX, May 4 (CP).—After spending twenty-two days on a life raft, Robert William Hilcken, seventeen-year-old United States Navy sailor, sat on his hospital bed here today and grinned as he read that two memorial masses had been sung for him in Fairview, N.J., where his family gave him up as dead after his merchant ship was torpedoed in the Western Atlantic.

"I'm not dead, not by a long shot," he said, "and the Germans will darned soon find that out. I'm going back to sea again, but this time on a destroyer where I can have a chance to hit back at the—"

Looking fit and well after his stay in the hospital, the youthful gunner told reporters the days he spent floating on a flimsy raft were the "shortest three weeks in my life. We were so busy looking for rescue we never seemed to mind the time."

SAYS VOYAGE JINXED

Telling of the disaster that left him and five of his shipmates floating on the still chilly Atlantic and killed an unknown number of his ship's crew, Hilcken said the voyage was jinxed from the moment they left Africa.

"We sailed on Friday the 13th," he said, "and it was exactly three weeks to the Friday that a German torpedo hit us amidships. The ship went down in five minutes and we barely had time to dump the liferafts overboard and jump for them."

Hilcken and Roland Nominee managed to clamber on to one small raft. With them they had one can of hard tack, half a can of graham crackers and one barrel of water. Covered only by a piece of canvas, the two clung to this precarious shelter for eight days.

JOINED BY OTHERS

On the eighth day the two sighted another raft from their ship, a bigger one, better supplied with food and water. They transferred in mid-ocean, joining P. B. Farmer, D. R. Fisher and R. B. Roller. Also on the raft was Ensign Weiant, U.S.N., who was injured when the ship sank.

"For the whole twenty-two days he never murmured, though he must have suffered terribly," Hilcken said of Weiant, "and then he had to die just two hours after we were picked up. It didn't seem fair."

Rescue came to the men early on the morning of the 22nd day, Hilcken said. "I sighted the ship as it broke the horizon, bearing right down on us. It was the most beautiful sight in the world."

The youthful gunner added, however, "it was just plain bull luck that we were rescued at all. The ship had changed its course to get rid of a trailing submarine. Otherwise it wouldn't have come within a hundred miles of us."

BRITISH OCCUPY FRENCH ISLAND

Rumors that the Japanese had designs on the island as a base from which to prey on the important United Nations shipping lanes in the Indian Ocean have been abroad and a Japanese mission was reported resident on the island, although this had been denied by the Vichy Government.

Only Sunday the Japanese co-ordinators of Axis effort in Rome and Berlin visited in Vichy and were received by Pierre Laval and Admiral Darlan. A Vichy communique was issued after this meeting had raised misgivings in Allied capitals, saying no political or diplomatic problems were raised during these meetings.

Three days ago two French cruisers and a submarine tender arrived at the Madagascar naval station of Diego Surez.

POWERFUL BASE

Madagascar lies athwart all the Indian Ocean shipping lanes, and in enemy hands would be a powerful sea and air base to cut off Allied supplies to Russia, via the Persian Gulf, as well as to throttle Britain's own supply lines to the fighting front.

The island is nearly 1,000 miles long and could be a threat to the Union of South Africa, which already has broken off relations with Vichy, to the British colonies farther north on the African mainland, north of Mozambique, and to Mauritius, Britain's mid-ocean base lying to the east of Madagascar.

The French naval station Diego Suarez is at the northern end of the island and there is another naval base at Majunga on the northwest coast.

Pointing out that the island could be used as a springboard for an air and seaborne invasion of the African continent, Reuter's naval correspondent wrote that "for months Japan has secretly plotted to seize this French possession."

AS PORT OF CALL

In addition to serving as a base to cut of Allied supply lines to Russia, China and the Middle East, Madagascar could also have served as a port of call for Japanese ships carrying vital war supplies from Japan's newly found conquered territories in the East to Germany, the Reuter's correspondent pointed out.

"Lord Selborne, Minister of Economic Warfare, has stated that with long-range cargo ships the Japanese could supply Germany," he wrote.

London circles declared immediately that the British move was in line with President Roosevelt's warning in his broadcast a week ago that "the United nations will take measures if necessary to prevent the use of French territory in any part of the world for military purposes by the Axis."

It was also considered significant here that the Axis radio Monday reported two United States battleships in the Indian Ocean.

UNITED NATIONS' MOVE

Responsible quarters in London regarded the operation against the island as one essentially planned by the United Nations as a whole although it apparently was carried out by British forces alone.

One London source said: "The news of that operation is marvelous."

It appeared to observers here that the United Nations had wrested the initiative from the Japanese on this front.

"The fears that Tokio, having forced Britain and China to retreat in Burma, would bypass India and carry the threat direct to the African continent, were reinforced by the installation of Laval at the heads of affairs in Vichy and memories of the Indo-China sellout," one of the observers said.

Britain remembered well the Indo-China affair and it has been evident for weeks that Madgascar presented a strategic problem of the first magnitude. There have been fears that Laval might find a pretext to allow Japanese land forces to "protect" the island.

In addition to anti-British broadcasts from Madagascar, the Paris radio has been speaking recently of an Anglo-Savon campaign for immediate occupation of the island.

UNITED STATES READY

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP).—Britain, stealing a march on the Japanese, has occupied the great French island of Madagascar athwart vital Allied supply lines in the Indian Ocean, and the United States served formal notice tonight that, if necessary, American forces will help defend it against all comers.

The move, announced here and in London, marked a perhaps historic change in a march of events which has seen the Axis get the jump, in virtually all other instances, on the Allies.

A statement from the State Department declared that the coup has the "full approval and support of the United States," since there was definite danger that Axis powers, especially Japan, would seize the island.

Bluntly, the statement warned the Vichy regime not to permit any warlike act against the occupying forces.

TO BE HELD IN TRUST

After stating the island would be held in trust for France, it said "any warlike act permitted by the French Government against the Government of Great Britain or the Government of the United States would, of necessity, have to be regarded by the Government of the United States as an attack upon the United Nations as a whole."

At apother point, the statement said "the Government of the United States is at war with the Axis powers and if it becomes necessary or desirable for American troops or ships to use Madagascar in the common cause, the United States will not hesitate to do so at any time."

While a communique issued in London said merely that a combined British naval and military force had arrived off the island at dawn this morning, the State Department went farther and said President Roosevelt had received word that the occupation actually had taken place.

VICHY ENVOY NOTIFIED

Ambassador Gaston Henry Haye, the Vichy representative at Washington, said he was notified prior to the London and Washington announcements of the action taken at Madagascar.

An aide to the ambassador said he was informed that President Roosevelt requested that he call at the State Department. There the ambassador was informed of the action.

The preliminary notification, the aide said, was a "gesture of courtesy" by the President to the ambassador.

The text of the department's announcement said:

"The French Ambassador was informed this evening in the following sense:

"The President of the United States has been informed that Madagascar has been occupied by British forces. This occupation has the full approval and support of the Government of the United States.

"The Island of Madagascar presents the definite danger to the United Nations of occupation or use by the Axis powers, especially Japan.

DANGER TO ALLIES

"Such occupation by the Axis powers would continue a definite and serious danger to the United Nations in their fight to maintain the kind of civilization to which France and to to which the United Nations have been so long accustomed.

"The Government of the United States is at war with the Axis powers, and if it becomes necessary or desirable for American troops or ships to use Madagascar in the common cause, the United States will not hesitate to do so at any time.

"The United States and Great Britain are in accord that Madagascar will, of course, be restored to France after the war or at any time the occupation of Madagascar is no longer essential to the common cause of the United Nations.

"In view of the fact that the Island of Madagascar will be held in trust for France, in order to protect it from any attack by any one of the Axis powers, any warlike act permitted by the French Government against the Government of Great Britain or the Government of the United States would, of necessity, have to be regarded by the Government of the United States as an attack upon the United Nations as a whole.

"The American charge d'affaires ad interim at Vichy was instructed to convey this message to the French Government."

New regulations say six persons waiting for bus, trolley or tram in Britain must form a queue.

JAPANESE NEARER CHINESE BORDER

Kutkai is within twenty-five miles of an appendage of Yunnan Province, which juts into Burma, but is about forty miles from China via the Burma Road. A Japanese column which attempted to flank the Chinese positions was reported repulsed in the bitter engagement.

BEYOND MANDALAY

A second Japanese column was pushing other Chinese slowly north along the Irrawaddy River beyond ruined Mandalay, probably driving toward Bhamo, 110 miles away. Bhamo is an alternate terminus of the Burma Road and the northernmost navigation point on the river.

The British Army of General Sir Harold Alexander was falling back slowly on the right flank to prepared positions, the communique added.

Some fighting was in progress in the Monywa area of the Chindwin River Valley, some sixty miles west of Mandalay. It was this force that appeared to be nearest to India.

"The Japanese party has been disposed of, but some Burmese traitors remain to be dealt with," the Chinese communique added.

A resurgence of Allied air power in the Burma theatre, where Japanese flyers have ruled the skies, brought one ray of hope to the dark picture.

RAID ON RANGOON

United States headquarters in India announced that multi-motored bombers raided Rangoon, chief supply base of the enemy, last night, causing a large explosion and fire in the centre of the docks.

The British Command reported that the R.A.F. followed up today with Blenheim bombers blasting barges of Japanese advancing up the Chindwin River. They scored direct hits, despite heavy ground fire, and came through the attack unscathed.

The main Japanese push was directed up the Burma Road and possibly was headed toward Chungking, 700 miles away, but the high mountains and deep gorges that intervened made the Chinese capital appear safe for the time being.

The thrust threatening India was directed northwest up the Chindwin River Valley against the tired and thinning ranks of Sir Harold Alexander's army.

THREAT TO INDIA

Against the threat to India, where General Sir Archibald Wavell waits with an army of several hundred thousand, the Allies placed great reliance on the jungle-clad mountains of the Indian frontier.

Even the most optimistic, however, acknowledged the situation in Burma was grim. The lack of roads from Burma and China made reinforcement and supply problems well-nigh impossible, and there was conjecture whether the defending armies could escape.

Far south of the present battle zones, Chinese forces still were fighting at Taungyi. Hope that they might strike out and cut Japanese communications from the rear has been waning rapidly. These Chinese, however, are well experienced in the art of fading into the jungle hills and conducting costly guerrilla warfare.

Greater Proportion Of A.R.P. Equipment Is Sent to Victoria

City Not Left Unprotected Inspector Moodie Declares—Praises Engineering Division—Special Raid Insurance Asked by A.R.P. Engineers

CLASSIFIED as a vulnerable area, Victoria has received a greater proportion of A.R.P. equipment than any other city in British Columbia, Inspector S. F. M. Moodie, head of the provincial civilian protection branch, told a meeting of the Victoria A.R.P. engineering division last night. Victoria, he said, had not been left unprotected.

High praise was paid the engineering division by Inspector Moodie. Victoria, he stated, in this branch of A.R.P. service, appeared better organized than any other centre he had seen.

ASK INSURANCE

The engineering division passed unanimously a resultion asking that Inspector A. H. Bishop, civilian protection officer, investigate possibilities for insuring engineering workers in a way similar to that proposed for auxiliary firemen.

The firemen are to be insured by the city, and will received $25 per week for twenty weeks if injured during a raid, with $3,000 to be paid in event of death. If the disability continues longer than twenty weeks the case will be reviewed. All A.R.P. workers are covered by compensation during a blackout, while firemen are covered in practices also.

Gas masks for decontamination squads and much fire equipment has already reached Victoria, Inspector Moodie said, while steel helmets would be provided as and when they were made available.

Every A.R.P. warden and worker called upon to work in the open was entitled to a steel helmet, he said, but the armed forces must be supplied first.

CERTAIN TYPES ONLY

He pointed out, however, that the Dominion Government had agreed to supply only certain types of equipment not readily available locally, and that the matter of A.R.P. was, in the first instance, mainly a matter of organization of voluntary emergency services by the individual community. No Dominion or Provincial Government could be expected to provide all the protection, he said.

Victoria, he added, had been provided with sirens at a large initial cost, and a regular monthly charge was paid on their upkeep, without the City of Victoria being called upon to pay anything in that regard.

SHORTAGE ADMITTED

Admitting a lack of equipment in Victoria's A.R.P. organization, Inspector Arthur H. Bishop, civilian protection officer, appealed to the engineering division to be loyal to the cause. He expressed confidence that "lack of equipment will not kill your spirit in the work."

Equipment, he said, was difficult to obtain, but what was received from Ottawa had been and would be equally distributed.

Acknowledging equipment priorities for the armed services, he pointed out that in Britain A.R.P. casualties were higher than the services and that A.R.P. workers should have equipment as well as members of the forces.

Through the A.R.P. equipment campaign being launched this week, he hoped sufficient funds would be made available to "change the situation somewhat," Inspector Bishop declared.

RAPS CITIZENS

He rapped citizens for failing to provide funds before a "collection" was made necessary.

"If the citizens of Victoria knew what kind of a situation they were in, they would come forward with the money to equip A.R.P. workers," he said. "It is sheer stupidity on the part of citizens here not to realize that the enemy is getting closer and closer all the time—and that is what is happening, because we aren't stopping them right now."

With the amount of money in Victoria, and the number of citizens retired here and in a position to give funds, a canvass should not be necessary, he declared.

READY TO ASSIST

Despite the fact that surrounding municipalities had seen fit to withdraw from the metropolitan A.R.P. plan, the city A.R.P. organization stood ready to offer assistance wherever needed, Duncan Kennedy, city building inspector, said in outlining the work of the engineering division. The same, he asserted, could be expected of Provincial and Federal authorities.

With men being "siphoned" into war industries and the armed forces, the engineering division must still keep up its numerical strength and be ready to maintain essential services, he declared. The work of the engineering division, he asserted, was necessary also in maintaining public morale.

Engineering division services include decontamination squads, demolition crews, building inspectors, wrecking cars, heavy trucking, tractor, crane and other equipment, gas fitters, city blacksmith shops, water department personnel, and many other civic branches. All services reported themselves in readiness. Decontamination men reported rubber suiting and boots were available, but gas masks were lacking at the present, and that chemical supplies were low.

INTERNMENT CASE HEARD

It was "unfortunate" that when Franceschini was released a statement was made to the effect that it was "on compassionate grounds."

Mr. St. Laurent dealt with reports mentioned by J. W. Noseworthy (C.C.F., York South) that there was a suspicion the Administration was too favorably disposed to those spreading the gospel of Nazism and Fascism.

MATTER FOR COMMITTEE

The committee could look into that situation, he said, and if it found persons were allowed at large whose activities were detrimental to the war effort prompt measures would be taken.

He thanked the many speakers who had spoken in the debate and made suggestions as well as criticisms. All those would be considered by the committee and the Government would welcome recommendations from the committee.

The regulations were his responsibility to enforce—not to remake.

Demand for a statement on the Franceschini incident was made early in the debate when Mr. Diefenbaker was discussing various activities carried on under the regulations.

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted from answers he had received to a formal question in the House, disclosing that while Franceschini was interned his extensive properties were administered by their directors and that Government orders amounting to more than $5,000,000 were given those firms.

Then, when Franceschini had been released, Mr. Diefenbaker said, the Government had bought one of his plants, the Dufferin Shipbuilding Company, for more than $900,000.

DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND

"These circumstances are difficult to understand," he said. "Why could an enemy of the country be able to have his business carried on while he was interned and then get the profits when he was released.

"In my opinion it will be difficult for the Government to explain if the only ground for his release was the one given at the time of his discharge."

Conservative House Leader Hanson started the debate when he suggested that the minister, who had offered the resolution without speaking to it, make a statement on the Government's attitude toward the Communist party.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House leader, devoted his speech on the resolution to criticism of the attitude toward publications which have been banned, claiming that some which should be questioned are left unmolested.

BITTER TOWARD ALLIES

He referred to The Voice of Austria, a publication printed now in Canada, which he claimed was bitter toward Canada's allies, notably Czecho-Slovakia, and toward Sir Stafford Cripps, member of the Churchill Cabinet in London.

Mr. Coldwell also questioned the activities of Otto Strasser, co-founder of the Nazi regime in Germany, now a resident of Montreal.

"Otto Strasser is still a Nazi—as much a Nazi as he ever was," he declared.

John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy party, urged a review of all internments in the face of complaints he had received that there were many injustices.

NATURALIZATION LAW

Howard Green (Conservative, Vancouver South) recalled that last session this committee examined naturalization and deportation laws and he thought specific instructions should be given the proposed new committee to do the same.

Support for this suggestion came from Arthur Slaght (Liberal, Parry Sound). Of the Communist party he said it should be realized that "the Communist party in Canada and our ally, Russia, are not one and the same thing."

Paul Martin (Liberal, Essex East) supported Mr. Green's suggestion for a review of the naturalization laws, which, he said, were "in a most deplorable state" and "present a most ridiculous situation."

Daring Pilot and His Fighter Plane

Flyer Taking Revenge for Loss of Arm

LONDON, May 4 (CP).—Squadron Leader James MacLachlan, who bagged two Nazi planes over the English Channel in Sunday's big R.A.F. sweep, observed today "It's almost quits for my arm now."

He lost the arm in a fight over Malta in March, 1941, after having shot down eight planes in the preceding six weeks. After months in hospital he was fitted with a metal arm, learned to fly again and returned to action. His unofficial score now is twenty-two.

tional Resources Mobilization Act soon would be exhausted.

PACIFIC COAST ARMY

Early in the debate, Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) differed with a previous speech by his fellow townsman, Howard Green (Conservative, Vancouver South) on the use to which the Pacific Coast army should be put.

Mr. MacInnis said Mr. Green had urged the creation of any army of the Pacific which could fight on its own.

He added that he did not think it practicable.

"If anything is clear in this war it is that Canada can not fight on its own," Mr. MacInnis said. "We can't put an army of our own in action in the East or in the West. We must fight with our Allies or not fight at all."

George Cruickshank (Liberal, Fraser Valley) urged a cost-of-living bonus for soldiers' dependents, passes on the railway for service men, and less saluting.

He said he was not going to criticize West Coast defences because no private member could know what the defences were. If Defence Minister Ralston would send a condensed report on all the suggestions made in the House by "armchair critics" to Hitler, Hitler would call off the war.

Mr. Cruickshank expressed concern about transportation into and out of British Columbia. He said Japanese are housed in box cars along the main lines of the railways where a handful of powder would destroy the line.

Colonel Ralston said neither the evacuation of the Japanese nor the guarding of roads was the job of the army. There were many vulnerable points in Canada. They could not all be guarded by troops and it would not be wise to use up the army that way. It was a job which could be done better by civilian police.

The army was concerned with keeping avenues of transportation into British Columbia open so that men and munitions could be shipped in. Troop dispositions were being made with that in view.

RUSSIAN TROOPS TAKE OFFENSIVE

In clashes on the Leningrad front, it said, 1,100 Germans were killed and a number of Nazi guns and ammunition dumps destroyed.

The people of the Ukraine were urged today by Marshal Timoshenko to engage in guerrilla warfare behind the German lines and so prepare the way for the Red Army of liberation.

"Help us with everything possible," read a proclamation. "Together with guerrillas crush the German occupants."

This could best be done, the marshal's proclamation noted, by blowing up bridges, by preventing the Germans from carrying away material and manpower, by breaking down the German communications, and by watching the direction of the enemy's flight and attacking the Germans from the rear.

SHOULD WATCH FOR MINES

"At the approach of detachments of the Red Army show them the safe routes for offensive," the proclamation said, and added that the inhabitants should remember where the Germans had placed mines and warn the Red Army of their locations.

The proclamation was printed in a newspaper of which more than 15,000 copies have been distributed behind the lines in the nine months of its existence.

Major offensive operations by either army still awaited more solid ground. Rivers swollen by the Spring thaw are keeping troops inactive in many places. The River Don, usually a-mile wide, was said to be thirty miles across in some locations.

INCURSION ENDS IN WITHDRAWAL

chances of a Japanese threat to their vital defence outpost either by land or by combined land-sea attack is evident, however, from the scope of their week-end air activities.

On the defensive, a communique said today, they bagged three Japanese bombers and one fighter from a formation of twelve enemy bombing planes and eight Zero fighters Sunday in another of the frequent air attacks on Port Moresby. Allied losses were light.

Another fifteen Japanese planes were shot down in other scattered battles during the week-end, headquarters reported.

A.R.P. Benefit to Be Held at Macdonald Park on Evening of May 25

The A.R.P. Benefit Victory Pageant will be held on the evening of Monday, May 25, at 7:30 o'clock, at Macdonald Park, under the auspices of Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

The May 24 celebration committee, which is sponsoring the fete to raise money for the A.R.P. in Greater Victoria, held a meeting last night in the City Hall council chamber, with Alderman W. H. Davies, chairman, presiding.

Alderman Davies stated that the three services here were glad to co-operate in the big demonstration that will be put on by the A.R.P. He also said that the Victoria Girls' Drill Team had kindly offered their services.

TELLS OF PAGEANT

Mrs. H. J. Cunningham gave a report on the Parent-Teachers' participation in the pageant, and declared they were right behind the movement. The schools were heartily supporting the pageant, too. One girl from the six high schools in Greater Victoria would be chosen to represent Miss Victory, with five princesses selected from the high schools. Also from the grade schools one boy and girl would represent each school, and they would portray one country in the pageant of United Nations.

The tableau will be arranged by H. S. Hurn.

COMMITTEE NAMED

The programme committee was named as follows: Alderman W. H. Davies, J. E. Cooper, Alderman D. D. McTavish, Alderman John A. Worthington, H. S. Hurn, C. Nichols, Councillor John Watson, and Mesdames A. S. Christie, W. Pallister, Parry, Harper and H. J. Cunningham.

It was decided to hold a street dance in Victoria on Saturday, May 23, and that a band concert be given on Sunday, May 24, at Beacon Hill Park.

NO PEACE FEELERS

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, asked today about rumored peace feelers by the Axis, reiterated that the State Department has no official information about them and added that President Roosevelt already has made abundantly clear the policy of the United States toward any peace with the Nazi regime. The question was asked at a press conference.

OTTAWA AND THE PLEBISCITE

There seem to be some ministerial differences at Ottawa as to how the result of the plebiscite should be interpreted. There is none among those who voted "Yes." They gave the Government a mandate for total war. They untied the knots of partisanship and opportunism that have cramped the Liberal Government's administration of the war. The Prime Minister himself has said, following the result of the plebiscite; "The vote was taken in a democratic fashion and it will be recognized throughout the country that, in a democracy, the will of the majority prevails."

That will is for total war, for the mobilization of man-power and woman-power by the Government, for the mobilization of any and all other resources that are considered necessary to insure victory. There should not be a moment lost in bringing about this result. The whole history of the war is that of how dangerous delays have been. The enemies of the United Nations have never hesitated in marshalling their full resources for an all-out struggle. They have set an example which, only in part, has been followed by those whose power they have challenged, and because they have done so explains why so much of Europe, and of Asia, too, is in the hands of the aggressor today.

It is time that the spirit of the people of this Dominion was freed from the frustration that has permeated it because of half-baked methods in the administration in war effort. There are no longer any party excuses that can be offered by Ottawa. The Government, both by the will of the people as expressed in the plebiscite and by virtue of the fact that the power is inherent in Parliament to take every conceivable step for the prosecution of war, is called upon by public opinion to act and act quickly, the more especially in the conscription of man-power for overseas service. The latter, if there was anything specific, was the issue of the campaign which led to an affirmative answer being given to the plebiscite. There is no escape from this, unless Quebec's verdict weighs too heavily with the Liberal Administration, and that could only be the case at the risk, nay the certainty, of antagonizing the rest of Canada.

The Services' vote on the plebiscite will be made known today. It cannot affect the result, save in making it more emphatic. The point is that action is expected on the part of the Government at once. Otherwise, the plebiscite was nothing more than a delusion and a sham, a time-wasting expedient. The inescapable fact is that the people are determined on all-out war effort. They have responded emphatically to the governmental query if that is their desire. Ottawa has no course except to interpret the people's wish with all means at its command. Any further procrastination will arouse such political hostility as will make the position of the Mackenzie King Government unenviable.

THE TROUBLE MAKER

Regularity, order and discipline are maintained in any organization in the general interest and for the benefit of the whole. This is generally recognized, but people are apt to overlook the fact that order and good government are established in the interest of the individual as well. It may be assumed that the great Duke of Wellington was in a position to realize the importance of discipline in its every aspect. He declared that while discipline is essential in order that an army shall be kept fit for real service, it is to be maintained for an additional reason which, in his opinion, ought to be brought out and kept constantly before the public mind. When, by public authority, an army is enrolled and organized, a definite contract or undertaking is entered into between the state and the soldier. The soldier has his rights as well as his duties, and it is a violation of this contract, a positive breach of faith with the well-conducted and well-disposed members of the army if discipline is not enforced. The Duke, when he expressed this opinion, was giving evidence before a Royal Commission appointed to consider the system of discipline in operation in the British Army.

It will be found, he said, that in any military company of one hundred men four out of every five are willing to do what is required of them. They lead a quiet life in barracks and obey orders. Twenty out of every hundred on the other hand will not do so. They are riotous and disorderly and are constantly disturbing the peace and comfort of the eighty. They have to be disciplined and this involves their confinement under guard or in goal. The consequence is that the eighty are obliged to do their duty for them. Thus a failure of proper discipline results in the grossest injustice to those who do obey orders. That is a view of the case that often escapes attention, but it is none the less true and ought to be brought before the public.

Wellington's evidence made it clear that as firmer discipline was gradually established in the Peninsular Army the state of things above described was completely changed. As time went on punishment for military offences became largely unnecessary and was almost discontinued altogether, owing to the conduct of the troops, which had so improved that, to quote his own words, he thought that he "could have gone anywhere and done anything with that army."

The rigid rules of army life, the mechanical obedience to orders, the necessary severity towards disobedience or neglect of duty, the large powers in the discretion of the official authority, the whole system and spirit of military discipline, however necessary in its own sphere, could not be tolerated in the ordinary education of the young. Nevertheless it is necessary to make some provision to cope with the rebellious and disorderly element of the school population, an element which probably forms something close to the same proportion there as in the army. There are few class rooms where time and energy have not been more largely expended upon the ill-conditioned 20 per cent than upon the 80 per cent who would make rapid and pleasurable progress, but for the presence of the lawless ones.

Fifty or sixty years ago when Canada was younger, school discipline was harder than it is now. There was among the schoolmasters of that day, in respect of rules and punishments, a rigid severity which is now very rare. Corporal punishment was inflicted frequently. It was taken as a matter of course. The authority of the schoolmaster and his right and duty to administer it went unchallenged. Things are managed differently now, school discipline is of a character far removed indeed from that of the old regime, corporal punishment is rare, is becoming rarer, and in many systems is practically obsolete.

No one would wish to return to the martial severities of the old school, but the problem which faces the schoolmaster, the problem created by the presence among the pupils of an ill-disposed 20 per cent is as real as ever. In fact it is more acute because the discipline of the average home has been much relaxed in recent years. A good character is, or should be, the chief end of education and it is held by many that owing to the relaxation of discipline in the home and in the school, the educational product of today is, in this respect, unsatisfactory. Education aims at scholarship as well as character and here we are confronted with a situation largely due to the advocates of soft pedagogy in the school and out of it. If, as occasionally happens, the percentage of failures at examination tests at school is high there is almost sure to arise from certain quarters a vociferous demand for an easier examination standard. The friends of idle or incompetent children find it easier to make such a demand than to assist and support the school by better discipline and supervision of home study. The 20 per cent of trouble-makers can still cause as much injury to the well-disposed majority in the schoolroom as Wellington's disturbers of the peace did in the Peninsular Army until army discipline made soldiers of them. Teachers who practice soft pedagogy, programme-makers who invent educational fads and frills, education departments that lower educational standards in the interest of idle and incompetent 20 per cent are guilty of a breach of contract, a gross act of injustice toward the other eighty.

RUBBER SHORTAGE

Collier's, an American magazine, has an article of more than average interest on the rubber shortage in its latest issue. It indicates that little concern was felt about the future supply of this commodity until May of 1940, the time when President Roosevelt spoke of the United States as "the arsenal of democracy." Then rubber was included in the list of "critical and strategic materials." A rubber reserve company came into operation. The British and the Dutch controlled 97 per cent of the world's rubber supply. In the process of building up reserves Mr. Jesse Jones, head of the Federal Loan Agency of the United States, secured 150,000 tons. By the end of the year, however, he had secured 430,000 tons at a cost of $193,000,000. Then, too, contracts were made to secure 1,200,000 tons to be delivered in 1942. None of this has been delivered. Japan entered the war and has prevented any shipments.

At the same time the United States started plans for producing synthetic rubber. There had already been some production of this, but the ouput was only 5,000 tons annually. The proposal was that this should be increased to 100,000 tons a year. This, then, says Mr. George Creel, writing in Collier's, "was the rubber picture in November, 1941. With 430,000 tons of natural rubber, either delivered or on the way; 1,200,000 tons bought for delivery in 1942, and the synthetic programme booming ahead, America sat on top of the world. . . . Then Pearl Harbor. Not even this debacle, however, had power to shake the confidence of the British and the Dutch. With 'impregnable' Singapore on guard, the rubber-producing countries of the Far East stood secure against assault. . . . Now in staggering succession came the capture of Mahlá and the successful invasion of Malaya and the East Indies, ending all hope that Jesse Jones' 1,200,000 tons of rubber would be delivered in 1942. . . . Almost overnight, America is called on to supply the rubber demands of every other member of the United Nations group with the exception of Brazil and possibly Mexico. From greatest rubber importing country in the world we must now become the greatest rubber exporting country in the world. Russia, China, the Dutch, Australia, Africa, Burma, Canada and most of South America all look to us for rubber. So does England, for out of their faith in the impregnability of Singapore, the British bought rubber from day to day, laying in no stock pile whatsoever."

SONNET

They that have power to hurt and will do none,
That do not do the thing they most do show,
Whom moving others, are themselves as stone,
Unmoved, cold, and to temptation slow,—
They rightly do inherit Heaven's graces,
And husband Nature's riches from expense;
They are the lords and owners of their faces,
Others but stewards of their excellence.
The Summer's flower is to the Summer sweet,
Though to itself it only live and die;
But if that flower with base infection meet,
The basest weed out-braves his dignity:
For sweetest things turn sourest by their deeds;
Lilies that fester smell far worse than weeds.

—William Shakespeare.

KING OF LIARS

"Count Alessandro di Cagliostro was really a liar of the first magnitude, thorough-paced in all provinces of lying; what one may call the king of liars. Mendez Pinto Baron Munchausen and others are celebrated in this art, and not without some color of justice; yet must it in candor remain doubtful whether any of these, comparatively, were much more than liars from the teeth outwards. Cagliostro was a perfect character of the species in question, who lied, not in word only, nor in act and word only, but continually, in thought, word and act, and from birth to death did nothing but lie."—Thomas Carlyle.

FROM THE BOOK OF MENCIUS

If you love others but are not loved in return, examine your own feeling of benevolence. If you try to govern others and do not succeed, turn inwards and examine your wisdom. If you treat others with courtesy but evoke no response, examine your inward feeling of respect. Whenever our actions fail to produce the effect desired, we should look for the cause in ourselves. For when a man is inwardly correct, the world will not be slow in paying him homage.—Translated from the Chinese by Lionel Giles.

PROVIDENCE AT WAR

Providence reserves to itself various means by which the bonds of the oppressor may be broken; and it is not for human sagacity to anticipate, whether the army of a conqueror shall moulder in the unwholesome marshes of Rome, or stiffen with frost in a Russian Winter.—Henry Hallam: "Europe During the Middle Ages."

The soul without imagination is what an observatory would be without a telescope.—Beecher.

THE WEEK

Western Front (935-941 Days)—Great Britain's sustained air attack against German positions continued on five nights and seven days, with an estimated 1,500 individual take-offs. R.A.F. losses were reported at sixty-five machines, including thirty-one fighters and thirty-four bombers. For less than one-fifth of that effort, the Luftwaffe lost forty-five machines, mostly in vengeance raids against four cathedral towns, where formations of from twenty to forty machines did considerable damage. With Rostock burned out and in ruins after four successive raids, the R.A.F. drove hard against Cologne, Trondheim, Kiel, Flushing and Hamburg; visited St. Nazaire, Le Havre and Dunkerque repeatedly; and picked out the former Goodrich rubber works and the Gnome-Le Rhone aero engine plant at Gennevilliers for selected raids. In addition, Le Touquet, Mardyck, Hazebrouck, St. Omer, Ostend, Ghent, Aalsund, Calais, Boulogne and Abbeville were raided. By day, sweeps of hundreds of fighter planes crossed the Channel, escorting medium bombers; and by night the largest bombers were out in sustained attacks against specific objectives. Night fighters saw action on both sides of the Channel. The Luftwaffe reply fell on Bath, Norwich, York and Exeter, where much civilian damage was done; and, according to German claims, on Bristol and Sunderland as well. In two instances, one-third of the raiding German force was shot down by night-fighters, assisted by gunfire from the ground. The weather held clear for five days of the week, during which time the R.A.F. pounded enemy objectives around every hour of the clock. The raids hurt, as the German massing of new fighter squadrons on the coastal apron showed. High, low, and in between, however, British squadrons went through.

Elsewhere on the Western Front action was light. Enemy submarines downed three small merchantmen in the Atlantic; their crews making shore some days later, in open boats or by transfer to rescue vessels. The Admiralty announced the loss of the British destroyers Southwold and Heythrop, and the submarine H31. Washington sources conceded the loss of the U.S.S. Sturtevant, a destroyer which struck a mine, or was torpedoed, off the coast of Florida. British patrol planes found a German destroyer in the moonlight and left her burning from direct hits. The British submarine Trident sank a large German supply vessel off the coast of Norway. At Trondheim itself, and at Aalsund, British planes reported a considerable concentration of German naval shipping; including battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines (from the wrecked St. Nazaire base). Diplomatically, the week was quiet. German-Japanese conversations at Berlin, and German-Italian talks at Salzburg, contributed little except propaganda. Hitler claimed the supreme overlordship of the German Reich; in short, despotic power. Premier T. Stauning, Denmark, died after a brief illness. President Roosevelt issued a sharp warning to Vichy France over the use of African or other French possessions for Axis needs. The United States prepared to return 750 Axis diplomatic staffs to their homes, via Lisbon, in an arranged consular exchange. Canada voted 2 to 1 in favor of removing restrictions from the Dominion in a desired, and anticipated, all-out preparation for war. A Belgian chemical plant in German hands, at Tessenderloo, blew up, killing 200 and injuring 1,000 other workers. Fifteen "hostages" were executed in Norway, and thirty additional victims in occupied France. Britain told the "V" Army to stand ready, as train wrecks in France and unrest in nearly all occupied lands broke out afresh. In his speech before his party, Hitler appeared nervous and on the defensive at home. What Germany proposed to do, however, was not reported outside of that country. Four months of the year have gone.

Eastern Front (310-316 days)—Summarizing action by air and sea, Russian sources said heavy toll had been taken in ten months of German naval and air forces in northern waters; including one battleship, one cruiser, sixteen destroyers, eighteen submarines, eighteen motor torpedo boats, and 116 transports and supply ships flying the German flag. To this was added the destruction of 721 German planes by Russian Baltic units in the same period. Speaking on May Day, Premier Stalin said Russia's sole aim was to drive the invader from Russian soil, and expressed confidence that this would be done in the coming months. Meanwhile, on land, poised forces sparred with armed patrols and swift local attacks on a slowly drying front. The ice went out on Lake Ladoga, but not before Leningrad had been provisioned and munitioned afresh. Russian troops held their gains in the north, and announced the capture of Borok, on the western shores of Lake Ilmen, and the cutting of the Novgorod-Staraya Russa Railway. A German thrust with tanks and planes developed on the Smolensk front, but was met and stopped in hard fighting. Russian field squadrons announced the destruction of 277 German planes for a loss of seventy-eight machines in seven days. Further south, there was continued sparring in the Orel-Kursk-Bryansk triangle, and again between Poltava and Dnieperpetrovsk, where Russian attacks made some headway against the German lines. Moscow claimed the capture of Fatezh, thirty miles northwest of Kursk, and spoke of sharp Russian thrusts south of Kharkhov. In the main, however, field positions appeared relatively unchanged, with no great weight of forces as yet thrown into the spring drive. Kronstadt and Sevastopol, beleaguered for months, exchanged greetings with Malta and Corregidor. Premier Stalin acknowledged British and United States aid, and referred to the Royal Air Force's hard drive against Luebeck, Rostock and the Ruhr.

Central Front — The position of Allied forces in Burma was rendered critical during the week, with evacuation of Mandalay, the severance of the Burma Road at Lashio and nearby points, and a back-thrust against the Burma-Yunnan border, endangering the Chinese position there. Three Japanese columns, heavily covered by air, advanced 120 miles in five days; spreading from Loilem northwest in a rapid advance which outran the defence, and led to pocket-fighting and a confused picture in the whole area. The evacuation of Mandalay followed Allied withdrawal north of the bend of the Irrawaddy River, and came forty-eight hours after the fall of Lashio. Japanese attempts to wedge British and Chinese forces apart were foiled, but the threat remained as increasing infiltration endangered lightly-held positions in the north. Over on the eastern flank, Chinese forces were heavily engaged in fresh Japanese thrusts towards the Yunnan border. These attacks were turned, but were also renewed as the week ended. Tank-led columns and dive-bombers were used by the enemy in a main effort to end the Burma campaign before the rains come. Proceeding northeast from Lashio, the Japanese drove against Hsenwi, where Chinese forces made a stubborn stand. Mandalay was reported gutted, and stores at Lashio railhead were destroyed by Allied forces before that position was taken. Pressure was being exerted against both British and Chinese positions as the period closed. No disguise was made of the fact that the Japanese advance had made the Allied position in Burma critical; the outflanking having two threats, one against the delaying action on the flank of India, and the other more directly against the Chinese at the intake of the Burma Road. Akyab remained in British hands, though under air bombardment from the Irrawaddy Valley. United Nations planes retaliated hard on Rangoon, against Japanese field posts on the Chindwin River, and at many other points. Approximately two-thirds of Burma had been over-run by the Japanese, with the aid of Burmese irregulars.

In the Mediterranean, armed patrols were active in the Libyan desert, but there was no change of position on the ground. Malta raids both rose and fell, as R.A.F. planes replied against German bases in Sicily. Alexandra was raided twice, with replies on Bengasi, Derna, Martuba and Axis positions in the field eighty miles west of Tobruk. Cairo announced 102 dead and 120 wounded in one of the enemy raids on Alexandria, where dive-bombers were used. Port Said, at the head of Suez Canal, reported one raid at midweek. The defenders of Malta picked off twenty-five enemy machines during the period and reported damage to several others. Several Italian supply ships were sunk during the period. Recapitulating enemy losses at sea in the Mediterranean, British advices stated a total of 1,277,000 tons of Italian shipping had been sunk in the central sea since Italy's entry into the war, in 1940.

In the Pacific (142-148 Days)—Struggle for the possession of the Philippine Islands continued, with at least four battle areas but little detailed report, during the week. Manila Bay forts held out, and hard fighting was indicated to be in progress elsewhere on Luzon, Panay, and Mindanao Islands, where the Japanese claimed they had widened beach-heads. There was a lull in land-sea action in the Southwestern Pacific; but an increase in enemy air activity over the north coast of Australia, and of New Guinea. Port Darwin and Port Moresby were raided by larger groups of Japanese planes, with heavier fighter escorts. United Nations forces struck back hard on Lae, Gasmata, Kupang and Salamaua. At midweek two unidentified planes were sighted high over Townsville, 700 miles south of Cape York, on the east coast of Australia. They were shelled by Australian defences there. Throughout the Southwestern Pacific area a general state of alert existed, but without fresh movement reported. Japanese naval concentration was reported at the Marshall Islands. United States reinforcements landed in Australia. Brig.-Gen. Harold George, United States Air Corps, lost his life in a plane accident in Australia, when a fighter craft, taking-off, crashed into a loading transport plane. The death of Lieut.-Col. J. L. R. Sutcliffe, who had assumed command of the Winnipeg Grenadiers at Hongkong towards the latter part of that action, was announced at Ottawa. Japanese refusal to treat with the international services of the Red Cross for the relief of suffering among prisoners of war was again reported.

ON THE RECORD

—By DOROTHY THOMPSON

HITLER'S SPRING OFFENSIVE

I therefore ask the German Reichstag for an explicit endorsement of my legal right to demand of everyone the discharge of his duties, and to cashier him who in my opinion is not fulfilling them from his post or office or remove him on the spot regardless of what duly acquired rights he may possess . . . Judges who do not recognize the rules of the hour will be removed from office."

These are the new powers that Hitler asked of his Reichstag on April 26 and that he got.

So far as I have seen no comment in explanation of what this means. It is of the most startling significance. With the grant of these powers, Hitler has brought down the entire structure of the German state as it has existed since Bismarck.

It may be said that he has always had these powers. But this is not quite true. Hitler tried to take over the administrative structure of the state complete and "switch it into line." That structure consisted of a vast hierarchy of "duly acquired rights"—the German word is "wohlerworbene rechte" — which affect nearly everybody in Germany, and which have been carefully built up for generations.

UNWRITTEN CONSTITUTION

The structure of these legal rights is what constitutes the social security of Germany. They are the unwritten constitution of the German nation.

These "duly acquired rights" affect the last worker in a factory, every civil servant, every soldier and officer. They are not "vested interests" or contractural property rights; they are the rights that people acquire as a result of service to industry or to the state. They are the very basis of the German claim to be a social state.

They cover such things as the right not to be dismissed from a job without compensation according to the number of months or years of service, the right to vacations, commensurate with the length of service; the right in the civil and armed services to regular promotion if one's duties are conscientiously fulfilled, the considerations of seniority, and finally to pensions, to which every German who has faithfully worked during his life may look forward in his old age.

Space does not permit an enumeration of the intricate system of such rights, but it can be summed up by saying that they comprehend those freedoms which have always been dearest to the Germans; not freedom of speech or religion, but freedom from want and fear.

Of these rights every German under the Nazis has been jealous. They constitute what is known as "Prussian Socialism"; they are peculiarly German and the very basis of that law and order which Germany could claim to represent. They are the rights which are achieved by the fulfilment of obligations—the German word literally translated means "well-earned rights"—not rights granted in nature to all men, rights worked for.

CHALLENGES TRADITION

Therefore it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of what Hitler has done. By stretching his hand into the structure of these rights he challenges the whole German tradition; he seizes power to terrorize everyone, and he also possesses an immense power of corruption.

Previous to this decree, if a German general disagreed with a policy, he could tender his resignation. He was out of the service; but his years of fidelity entitled him to honorable retirement on pension. Today if he disagrees, he can be thrown on the streets or "entfernt"—removed—liquidated.

But he can be thrown on the streets without any disagreement, merely because the Fuehrer, instructed by anyone in his entourage, may decide to do so. The threat of the confiscation of all his security hangs over everyone. It is for the German the ultimate terror.

But these rights can also be transferred, under this new decree. The rights which "A" has spent his life working for can fall upon "B" who is put into his shoes because he is more "reliable" in the eyes of the party. So there is candy in this for every obsequious denouncer and fawner. It opens the entire structure of the state to terror and corruption. The Russians made the best comment on it: "Hitler's Spring offensive has begun. It is against the German people." It is even more—from a German point of view—it is against that almost metaphysical realm—the German state.

Coupled with it is direct intervention in the courts and the end of even the fiction of a free judiciary. Now, it may be said, that since the Nazis came to power, the independence of the courts has been destroyed. But again this is not quite so. The whole might of the party could not persuade the German court to sentence Dimitrov as the instigator of the Reichstag fire. The courts did not dare to prosecute the true offenders; but they did not sentence to death—as they were supposed to do—men against whom there was not a scrap of evidence. And the belief that there is still a law in Germany, and uncoerced courts, has left to the Germans a certain pride.

The people's courts set up under the Nazis, were, to be sure, star-chambers; political offenders were brought before them and such offenders did not have a chance. But the civil courts still retained some memory and practice from an ancient tradition of justice. Over their portals was still written "Fiat Justitia: Pereat Mundos"—let justice stand, though the world perish. The law was made by decree of Hitler, but the interpretation of the law and the sentences were in the hands of the courts; with the great tradition of German law in their minds. But from now on Hitler is to be lawmaker, prosecutor, jury and judge, with a right to intervene and reverse any sentence.

This is the institutionalizing of the purge. There is to be a permanent purge, and to add insult to injury, it is to be carried out through the mechanism of a theoretically independent judiciary. So that every judge in Germany is sitting on dynamite.

WORK FOR GESTAPO

Now, of course, Hitler who has plenty to do anyhow, cannot go around listening at every court or interviewing every factory worker or bureaucrat; somebody's going to have to do this for him, and that means the Gestapo. So there is going to be organized denunciation and personal revenge on an unprecedented scale.

This is the reward that the leader of his people gives to men and women who, in however unworthy and appalling a cause, have spilled their fortune and their blood with immense discipline and sacrifice.

And why does he do it? Because this psychotic idiot, whom even the democratic world likes to think of as a genius, is the victim of his own neurosis. He is afraid of the German people and he hates them and always has. These people—civilians—were those who "stabbed Germany in the back" in the last war; who, when they knew that the war was lost—as Ludendorff knew it was lost—finally refused to go starving and sacrificing their sons for a futile cause. Hitler writes about this at length in Mein Kampf; one thing he is going to see to—this shall not happen again.

And now the news is bad, and a prescience of defeat is on him; now comes the moment of the "stab in the back," the imminence of which has always been his abnormal anxiety. He has gotten rid of the Jews, the Socialists, the democrats, the pacifists, but there are always the people, those terrifying people with "duly acquired rights"; bureaucrats who seem sure of their jobs; workers who have it written down that this and this is the reward of that and that; courts with their precedents. All all must become insecure; dependent from moment to moment on his whim. Thus will he hold Germany together and prevent that his fate in a losing war should be that of his predecessors.

BEGINNING OF END

They will kill Hitler. This seems a fantastic statement to make—but they—Germans—will kill Hitler—if he exercises the powers that he has now grabbed. Or, if they do not, Germany is finished. The last bones that have held together the semblance of a social and political structure are broken by this new decree.

I wrote weeks ago in an imaginary conversation between Hitler and Brauchitsch, quoting Hitler: "If I do not conquer Russia, I will bring down Petain."

Now he is saying, "If I do not do not conquer Russia, I will bring Germany."

Let this slow up no one's war effort. Let us get this business over quickly. The process of Hitler's collapse will be war—more war. Just the same—he's finished.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily Colonist of May 5, 1892.)

A Clever Sparrer—At the Victoria Theatre this evening James J. Corbett, the California Wonder, matched to fight John L. Sullivan, for the championship of the world, will make his initial bow before a Canadian audience. Corbett's cleverness as a sparrer and his reputation as an artistic exponent of the science of self-defence have gained for him a world-wide rendown, and the exhibition will be well worth witnessing. Reed and Saunders will also spar.

Still on the Rock—Marine men, when they left the waterfront last evening, went home with the expectation of seeing the schooner Lahlee badly broken up this morning. In the heavy wind that blew yesterday afternoon the schooner had been turned around several times on the rock she rests on, the result of which must have been very injurious, although, as far as could be ascertained last night, no serious damage had been done.

To Interview the Premier—Messrs. Earle and Pilot, Victoria representatives, now at Ottawa, will today interview Premier Abbott, with the respect to the Postoffice, Custom House and other public buildings so badly needed in this city.

Vancouver radio stations are stressing: "Spring-clean your attics and basements and give what you find to war salvage." We should do the same here . . . Last week the "Arf a Mo'" Concert Party at Fort Macaulay broadcast its variety programme for the first time. It was most entertaining and we hope the boys appear again in the near future . . . Not long ago a small vessel arrived in the Inner Harbor from a voyage and two members of the engine crew told the chief engineer they thought a bearing was burned out. He rushed below but soon found everything shipshape. "Sure smells like a hot bearing," one of the men commented. "It is harbor mud you smell," the engineer replied . . . Note from an old soldier, "Did you ever try to find out why lighting three cigarettes from one match is supposed to be bad luck? It appears that an energetic sales manager for a large British match company sat down in 1915 to figure out how sales could be boosted. After scratching his head for a week he rushed into a directors' meeting and babbled, 'I have it, gentlemen. Let us spread the superstition that any chap who receives the third light from one match will be killed. By jove, we will sell tons more matches.' So quietly the match company peddled the vicious superstition, and it spread like wildfire among the boys in the trenches and elsewhere" . . . An interesting story of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway was contained in The Seattle Post-Intelligencer last Sunday under the title, "Chugging Along With Vancouver's Isle Choo-Choo." The article opens by stating, "We good people of Seattle, Tacoma and the Upper Sound country are as yet serenely unaware of it, but Vancouver Island's historic and picturesque little railway, the E. & N., looks to us this Summer for the biggest tourist season in all history. More and more Americans are landing at Victoria without their cars, and to its delight and slight amazement the E. & N. finds itself being pressed into sightseeing service."

WORK TRAINEES ARRIVE

Alternate service trainees, working with the Provincial Forest Service this year on fire prevention duties, will be paid fifty cents a day and have their board and shelter provided, Hon. A. W. Gray announced yesterday.

First men transferred under the scheme arrived on Saturday at Green Timbers, and others are to follow shortly, for camps at Cowichan Lake and Campbell River. Mennonites to the number of 700 may be transferred to British Columbia under the scheme, Mr. Gray said.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

To find the depth of water on the bar at the Esquimalt Drydock at any tide, add 30 feet to the height of high water as above given.

Council to Discuss Plans for Bonus at Next Civic Session

Alderman W. Lloyd Morgan Gives Notice of Motion That Would Provide Heads of Families With Extra $10 Per Month Payments

A COST-OF-LIVING bonus for civic employees will be voted on at the next session of the City Council, according to notice of motion filed by Alderman W. Lloyd Morgan at a meeting yesterday afternoon. Such a bonus would apply only to those receiving not more than $2,100 per annum, and in no case would it be the means of assuring them a total income in excess of that amount.

Alderman Morgan explained he intended to move heads of households receive $10 per month, retroactive to January 1. Those not in that category would receive $5 per month. Bonuses to those on daily pay scales would be 46 cents for heads of families, and 23 cents per day for single persons without dependents. He said the plan would cost between $59,000 and $60,000 this year.

Formal notice was served on the council by the Civic Employees' Federation that members had applied to the Provincial Government for a conciliation commissioner in an attempt to secure a bonus. Members feel the findings of such a commissioner will result in payments greater than $10 and $5 per month.

In committee of the whole the council listened to Miss Adalina L. Mess, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, advance reasons why a grant of $900 should be made to assist in taking care of unmarried mothers, children and juvenile court work. The health and welfare committee was asked to examine a brief presented by Miss Mess and compile a report for perusal at a later date.

ATTACKS MOTIONS

Motions of last month placing Forrest L. Shaw in charge of the lands department and calling for a complete list of city-owned property were attacked by Aldermen Archie Wills and B. J. Gadsden. Alderman Wills suggested both motions be rescinded. On motion of Alderman John A. Worthington the question was tabled until the return of Alderman Edward Williams from Comox. Mr. Shaw stated he had cleaned up eleven out of fifteen delinquent agreements for sale. He was granted a temporary automobile allowance of $25 per month and asked to continue his supervision of the lands office.

The council accepted an invitation of Rev. J. L. W. McLean to attend a municipal service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on May 24. Mayor Andrew McGavin requested Aldermen Worthington and F. A. Willis to become members of the lands committee. A letter from R. W. Mayhew, M.P., stated he would assist the council in its efforts to have unsightly waterfront shacks and houseboats removed.

Capt. Robert Brindle, of the city fire department, was asked to attend a special course in bombs and gas at Palo Alto, Cal. Fire wardens were requested to report on advisability of sending a representative to a similar United States Army course at Washington, D.C.

Mr. Shaw reported a city agreement covering erection of Wartime Housing, Limited, units in James Bay district had been sent to Ottawa for approval. The water board and Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee were requested to discuss the question of wild flower protection at Thetis Lake and Mount Douglas Parks next year.

UNSIGHTLY MENACE

Fire wardens were asked to discuss means of removing the partly-burned Palais de Danse on Dallas Road, which the council considered an unsightly fire hazard. An extra grant of $250 was passed to the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee. Superannuation benefits were granted to Charles Ingram, an employee of the boulevards department.

Instructions were given the city purchasing agent to apply to Ottawa for a priority rating and number in an endeavor to secure essential city supplies. The finance committee reported members were unable to recommend an increase in salary for Dr. Richard Felton, city medical health officer. The council decided to ask him to keep complete records of the number of patients attended at his office and in their homes, the number of children examined and men visited at the city jail.

On motion of the lands committee a lot on the north side of Hillside Avenue, between Gosworth Road and Doncaster Drive, was sold for $100. Resignation of R. Tillyer was accepted from the fire department in order to allow him to enter the wood business. A new sewer was ordered installed at 1526 Dallas Road. The sum of $250 was passed to assist in May 24 celebrations. The health committee reported members were satisfied with the operation of a refuge home at 27 Olympia Avenue known at The Rainbow.

LAST RITES FOR GILBERT CLARKE

CHEMAINUS, May 4. — Funeral services were held at St. Michael and All Saints' Church, Chemainus, on Saturday for Gilbert Clarke, only son of the late Fred Clarke and Mrs. Clarke, who died early Wednesday morning at Virginia Mason Clinic, Seattle. Mr. Clarke was owner of the business known as Clarke & Son, builders' supplies, Chemainus and Ladysmith, and had made his home in Chemainus since 1920, coming here from Vancouver with his parents.

Mr. Clarke was born in Manchester, England, on October 27, 1907, coming to Canada in 1912. With his parents he resided at Bowden, Alta., for several years, later moving to Calgary, where he received his early education. In 1919 the family moved to Vancouver and in 1920 to Chemainus, where his father established the business in which he became first a partner and then later, on the death of his father in 1938, sole owner. Twelve years ago he married Rose, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lepper, Chemainus. He is survived by his widow and his mother, in Chemainus, and an uncle, J. Burns, Ladysmith, and also relatives in England.

The funeral rites were conducted by Rev. T. L. Hipp, assisted by Rev. E. M. Cook, retired Baptist minister and an old family friend, and the body was later sent to Vancouver for cremation. Pallbearers were A. Long, C. Charlton, T. Waller, R. McBride, F. Elliott and G. C. Saunders. In accordance with an expressed wish of the deceased, the ashes will be distributed on the waters of Porlier Pass next Friday, Rev. T. L. Hipp reading the committal service.

SHARP NAZI ATTACKS FOLLOW R.A.F. RAIDS

for the first time since the Germans started their sharp reprisal raids and they expressed the theory the Germans were driven to this tactic by recent losses at Bath, Exeter and York.

One watcher said he believed the Germans lost four planes, instead of three reported earlier, out of an estimated force of thirty.

U-BOAT BASES BOMBED

The Royal Air Force's aerial artillery hurled bombs upon three strongholds of German naval might yesterday in a sudden and sharp offensive against the Nazi U-boat fleet massing at its bases for the Summer campaign on North Atlantic sealanes.

Swinging out over a 900-mile front in predawn attacks, the R.A.F. blasted at Hamburg, great German port; St. Nazaire, in occupied France, from which big German submarines are sent out to harry the United States eastern coast, and at Kristiansand, from which submarines sally forth to raid the Northern supply route to Russia.

In swift, daylight follow-up of these powerful attacks, Boston bombers protected by fighters made an intense raid on Le Havre, in occupied France, another base for German naval operations against the Allies.

Despite bad weather over Germany, Hamburg was bombed in what one source called "considerable weight." Pilots said they saw large fires in docks and shipyards as they left.

Bomber crews participating in the Kristiansand attack watched bombs exploding in barracks, ships and what probably was an ammunition dump. Six fires were visible for fifty miles. The Island of Oderoen also was attacked.

EXETER IS ATTACKED

The R.A.F. lost five aircraft in those early raids, but British anti-aircraft guns and night fighters defending the home territory accounted for five of about thirty German bombers which attacked Exeter.

Exeter suffered considerable damage and casualties.

During the day Coastal Command aircraft attacked German shipping.

A Hudson bomber of an R.C.A.F. squadron engaged in these operations scored four direct hits on a supply ship off The Netherlands coast and left it blazing fiercely. The bomber was piloted by Flight Sergeant E. L. Howey, Exeter, Ont. The wireless operator was R. Larkins, Barrhead, Alta.

Another Coastal Command aircraft bombed two ships huddled close together in a Norwegian fjord.

Yesterday six German fighters bombed and machine-gunned a southeast coast town. There were a number of casualties and several buildings were hit.

The German losses for the last two weeks were thirty-five certain and air sources said probably ten more crashed before landing. "The German air force losses are around 15 per cent," one air source said.

Made a Record With His Motor

Using twenty-four-year-old car batteries as motor power, a South Australian made an electric automobile with a 4-h.p. engine run non-stop ninety-four miles at an average speed of twenty-four miles an hour at a running cost of 1s—world record, of course.

The motors are embodied in the two back wheels, making a differential unnecessary. Batteries are recharged from the electric mains with an automatic cut-out.

Plans for the annual Hospital Day tea, to be held in the Royal Jubilee Hospital Nurses' Home on May 12, were discussed at the meeting held by the Florence Nightingale Chapter, I.O.D.E., yesterday afternoon at headquarters, the first vice-regent, Mrs. F. W. Baylis, presiding in the absence of Mrs. James Baker. The general convener will be Mrs. H. Catterall; Mrs. George Lillie will have charge of the decorations; Mrs. G. Schade, contests, and Mrs. Ripley, chicken dinner. Mrs. St. Clair Kitching will have charge of a book shower at the tea in aid of the patients in the pavilion.

Mrs. W. R. Roskelley will have charge of the musical programme, in which Mrs. Marjorie Goodwin will sing; Edith McGill will play violin solos; Barbara Graves, Marilyn Ferguson, Marlene Graves, Baby Norma Graves and Ilace Roskelley will dance.

The sum of $3 a month was voted to the Municipal Chapter war work expenses. A letter of thanks was received for bed lamps sent to the Gordon Head Military Hospital and another lamp will be forwarded. Mrs. R. J. Sproti, provincial president, was named as the chapter's delegate to the national annual meeting. Mrs. L. A. Lucas was appointed liaison officer between the chapter and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Mrs. T. Lumsden reported $25.10 worth of comforts made for the services and $17.43 for bombed-out civilians. An appeal was made for Indian socks.

The chapter endorsed the National Chapter's resolution that the principal of the National Endowment Fund be made available for use in case of a grave national emergency. The members also endorsed the by-law that war service conveners be made members of their chapter's committee. Disappointment was expressed that the order in British Columbia did not receive the full amount allotted them by the National War Services Drive.

Ottawa Board Hears Women's Views on Price Ceiling Laws

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board today answered the questions of "Mrs. Housewife"—Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, of Toronto, who told board officials Saturday what 1,000 women of the Housewives' Consumers Association think about the price ceiling.

"Mrs. Brown is the best news we've had for a long time," commented one executive of the prices board. "We are certainly glad to get her reactions—to hear what the housewives are thinking and saying. Now we'll be able to do something about their problems.

"Keeping down prices is our job. The housewives can help us more than anyone else."

But in spite of the housewives, there won't be any rationing for a while, the official added. Rationing was one of the chief things Mrs. Brown requested. She said that she and the women she represents feel that voluntary rationing means sacrifices for the women who play fair, who have to pay for the selfishness of unpatriotically-minded women.

FEW HOARDERS

Wartime Prices Board officials said they differed on this. "As far as we are concerned, voluntary rationing is a success," said one. "Women have co-operated magnificently on sugar rationing. Of course there are a few offenders—but very, very few."

He said that under the price ceiling regulations only seventy-five prosecutions had been made. Of these, fifty-one were for rental violations, one constituted a violation of the price ceiling and only twenty-three were prosecuted for hoarding sugar.

Board officials said they regretted that Mrs. Brown—and the rest of the women of Canada—probably won't buy tea at thirty-nine cents a pound for the duration. Bulk tea could be sold at this price before the war because the cost of transportation wasn't nearly so great and because less expensive brands of tea came from Japan and China. Now, they explained, these two sources are closed, and planters elsewhere with limited shipping tend to ship their best tea, rather than inferior qualities. The board had tried to average the price of tea, but there was little else it could do.

Mrs. Brown declared that less expensive lines of clothing, underclothing and stockings were disappearing from the market.

"There is no reason for this," board officials replied. "If this is the case, we want women of Canada to check up on it and tell us. Regulations are definitely being broken."

Regarding the women's pleas for two-pants suits for their husbands, board officials said that it was necessary to economize in materials at the moment. Under the new regulations against extra trousers, double-breasted styles and trouser cuffs, a material saving of 25 per cent is made. Therefore, out of every five suits, there is enough material saved to make a sixth.

The monthly meeting of the Ganges Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held on Friday afternoon at Ganges Inn. The regent, Mrs. Cecil Springford thanked all who had assisted with the I.O.D.E. tag day, when the sum of $63.50 had been collected. Mrs. Springford reported that Mrs. Graham Shove, Navy League convener, had raised $21.15 by a contest won by Miss Elsy Price, and by telephone bridge. This sum will go towards equipping a bed in Esquimalt House. Mrs. Shove offered to arrange contests during the Summer months in aid of the chapter.

The newly-elected president of the Provincial Chapter, Mrs. R. J. Sprott, was appointed delegate to the National annual meeting in Montreal. The treasurer reported $171.92 in the general fund and $120.11 in the war work fund.

Satisfactory reports were heard from both the war work convener and the president of the sewing circle, and a letter of thanks will be written to Mrs. Gilbert Wilkes and Miss Paulette Chantelin, non-members, who regularly send in work to the chapter. A letter was read from Mrs. F. Stead, retiring Provincial president, congratulating members on the excellence of the work received from them at headquarters.

Mrs. B. G. Wolfe-Merton urged the collection of old rubber, to receive which she arranged to have a box placed in the freight shed on Ganges wharf. Mrs. Springford reported on the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter in Victoria, which she had attended as delegate, and she stated that the wool available for use this year would be cut to one-fifth of last year's supply. Residents were again asked to donate fleece to the chapter as before. The Saturday afternoon stalls on Ganges wharf will be continued in the Summer. Mrs. C. E. Baker and Mrs. Springford taking the first and second on May 23 and 30, Mrs. Jack Abbott and Mrs. Dallas Perry those in June, Mrs. H. M. A gardens afternoon will be held June 3, and following the inspection tea will be served at "Barnsbury," under the convenership of Mrs. Wolfe-Merton, assisted by Mrs. H. W. Clegg, Misses A. and M. Lees and Shirley Wilson. Members lending cars were asked to telephone Mrs. D. Jenkins so that transportation could be arranged. The money raised by the afternoon's proceedings will go towards the purchase of fleece.

It was decided to hold the annual garden fete in July, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crofton's kind offer to lend Harbour House was gratefully accepted. The date for the fete will be announced later.

By the sale of tickets for the picture, "Lost Lagoon," the chapter realized $32 towards the I.O.D.E. Spitfire fund, this amount being made up to $50 and the sum forwarded to the Provincial Chapter.

A resolution that all reports of isolated primary chapters be brought under one heading will be forwarded to the Provincial Chapter. It was decided to ask for the same amount of fleece to be made into wool as had been ordered last year.

Tea hostesses were Mrs. P. Lowther, Mrs. H. Spalding and Miss June Mitchell.

POSTWAR BODY OPENS INQUIRY

Public Hearings to Be Called After May 28 in Victoria And Vancouver

British Columbia's Postwar Rehabilitation Council on May 28 will commence a series of meetings in Victoria and Vancouver at which representation from public bodies will be asked, Hon. H. G. WHY DO WE CALL THEM THE "SCRIPTURES?"

"Compared to the knowledge which the Scriptures contain, every other subject of human inquiry is vanity."—Buckminster.

Derived from the Latin scripture a writing, "scriptures" literally means writings—documents or inscriptions.

While it is so used occasionally in the singular, it is more generally in the plural employed in references to the books of the Old and New Testament—or either of them—especially when it is desired to lend to the usage more distinction or eminence than derives from the more popular word Bible.

That this should come about is perhaps natural.

Soon after the spread of Christianity, that book or group of books was regarded indubitably as the greatest of documents—without qualification or peer, the writings or Scriptures.

The earliest use of "scriptures" in this sense was in the year 1300.

CHANGES HIS GUARD

LONDON, May 4 (CP).—Dispatches from Stockholm said today that the bodyguards of Vidkun Quisling, Nazi puppet premier of occupied Norway, had been replaced by specially German-trained Norwegian police "of a fair Germanic type" and that the grounds around Quisling's residence now bristle with anti-aircraft guns. The original bodyguards were said to have been dismissed because "certain incidents occurred."

Conrad Veidt Stars in Gripping Drama of Sabotage Plots—Ann Ayars in Feminine Lead

The story deals with a sabotage leader who enmeshes his kindly brother in his plots. There is a quarrel in which one brother accidentally shoots the other, and on the saboteur's death his brother takes on his identity to carry out a masquerade that breaks up the ring.

Ann Ayars, new Hollywood glamour discovery, plays a girl enmeshed in the spy plot.

Martin Kosleck is the Gestapo agent and others in the picture include Dorothy Tree and William Tannen.

Railway Restricted In Efforts to Get Increased Business

Cancellation of Agreement, Whereby Railroads Divide Government Traffic, Favored by President of Canadian National

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—A Government order requiring equal division of business between the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway is in existence in some departments and restricts the C.N.R. in its efforts to obtain increased business, Alistair Fraser, C.N.R. traffic vice-president, told the Railways and Shipping Committee of the House of Commons late today.

Earlier today Defence Minister Ralston mentioned instructions issued in 1933 for an equal division of business and said he was quite agreeable to ordering their removal.

Diviston of the Defence Department business was actually about 60 per cent C.N.R. and 40 per cent C.P.R.

Munitions Minister Howe said there was a similar division in his department. Transport Minister Cardin reported his department's business about 65 per cent C.N.R. and 35 per cent C.P.R.

Postmaster-General Mulock told the committee later that there was no fifty-fifty order in his department. The C.P.R. received the largest share of the business, but the difference was changing, over a period of years in favor of the C.N.P.

PASSED RESOLUTION

The committe last year passed a resolution asking division of Government business "more in accord with the relative responsibility of the two roads."

Figures were repeated before the committee today showing the C.N.R. mileage as 21,790 and the C.P.R. as 16,829. The C.N.R. also had more employees and higher fixed charges.

Mr. Fraser told the committee C.N.R. officials seeking Government business were frequently told the business could not be routed by C.N.R. because of the fifty-fifty order of 1933.

"This is generally in effect in most if not all departments," Mr. Fraser said.

He also told the committee of a Royal Canadian Air Force order dated July 22, 1940, and repeated July 15, 1941, drawing attention to the fifty-fifty instructions.

These orders placed a "definite limitation" on the ability of the railroad to get business. The C.N.R. with its larger mileage was almost certain to get more than half the business, but there should be no restriction on competitive lines, he suggested.

Mr. Fraser said that Colonel Ralston's readiness to cancel the equal division order was "quite satisfactory," but he added that he thought more than that would be required to clear the situation.

Mr. Cardin told the committee the railway had made "strong representations" for increased business. The Transport Minister said the matter had been considered by the Government, but under the pressure of other business he was not sure anything had been done by the Government. In his department instructions had been issued for a more favorable division of business.

MANY TELEGRAMS

Mr. Cardin said he had been flooded with telegrams from all parts of Canada last year, protesting against the Government interfering with distribution of business as between the railways. The country was going through unsettled times and things decided one day might have to be changed the next.

He said he believed the C.N.R. should be left free to fight its own battles for the business of different departments of the Government, as it fought for the business of private enterprise.

Mr. Cardin said he was in favor "of the field being left open" for the present at least, and any necessary adjustments could be made in light of later consideration.

This was in accordance with a statement made to the committee by R. C. Vaughan, C.N.R. president, who said all the railway seeks is to have any existing instructions for division of Government business removed and the field left open to competition.

Navy Minister Macdonald tonight told the committee naval service regulations provided traffic might be routed either via C.N.R. or C.P.R. "according to the convenience and best interests of the service."

Traffic east of Montreal was routed C.N.R. and west of Montreal C.P.R.

In the last fiscal year the passenger and freight business was divided C.N.R. $1,247,788 and C.P.R. $567,626. Communication business for 1941 was divided Canadian National $99,472 and Canadian Pacific $87,057.

Mr. Maybank (Liberal, Winnipeg South Centre) said the zoning of routing gave the C.P.R. all the "long hauls" in Western Canada.

Mr. Macdonald replied this was correct, but the bulk of the movement was from Ontario and Quebec.

Loss of Control Brings Injuries To Student Pilot

CLARESHOLM, Alta., May 4 (CP).—A student pilot was seriously injured and a number of airmen suffered minor injuries today when a plane from No. 2 Flying Instructional School crashed into the side of a barracks at No. 15 Service Flying Training School here.

All those injured are expected to recover. The student seriously injured was a passenger in the plane. The pilot, another student, escaped serious injuries.

Wing Commander W. E. Kennedy, Officer Commanding No. 15 S.F.T.S., said names of the men involved in the crash will be released following confirmation that their next-of-kin have been advised of the accident.

"While attempting to fly on one engine, the pilot of the plane lost control of his aircraft, which crashed into the side of a barracks. Personnel in the barracks were struck by flying splinters," Wing Commander Kennedy said.

A fire started but this was quickly brought under control by the station fire crew and the flames did little damage.

Four Destroyers Slide Down Ways Of Eastern Yard

KEARNY, N.J., May 4 (AP).—Four destroyers slid down the ways in clocklike precision yesterday in a mass launching acclaimed by Governor Charles Edison as "the equivalent of a splendid naval victory."

The ships knifed into the Hackensack River before a small crowd at the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company yards.

The shipyard claimed the launchings of the four warships, all 90 per cent completed, in fifty minutes constituted a world record.

Three of the vessels—The Fletcher, Radford and Mervine—honored rear admirals of the United States Navy. The fourth—the Quick, commemorated the name of a sergeant major of the United States Marines.

SERVICE NOW IN OPERATION

Trans-Canada Air Lines Making Daily Round Trip To Newfoundland

MONCTON, May 4.—Trans-Canada Air Lines service to Newfoundland, which is being operated as a part of the hemispheric defence plan, is now in operation. This service links the military outposts of the United Nations in Newfoundland with the mainland by means of a daily round trip between Moncton and St. John's; at the same time, the new service brings the heavy industries of Cape Breton within Canada's national airline network with a stop at Sydney, on the tip of Canada's eastern shore.

Some 400 pounds of air mail were handled on the opening day of the new service, May 1, and of this some eighty-five pounds originated at United States army bases.

Sir Humphrey Walwyn, Governor of Newfoundland, was among those who welcomed the first plane on arrival at St. John's. As was anticipated, the inaugural plane returned to Canada to connect with the transcontinental T.C.A. service with every seat occupied. One of the passengers, a Canadian naval officer, proceeded immediately to Victoria, B.C.; for him it was a twenty-four-hour journey compared with the week it has previously taken.

Air express loaded on the inaugural flight was consigned to war contractors at island points. The new service will also permit through movements of air express shipments from all Canadian points and from points in the United States to Newfoundland. Shipments originating at or destined to points south of the border will be carried from and to connections with the railway express agency's air division at points along the main route of Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Mr. Daly is representative of C.N.R. employees on the board.

CHURCH OF OUR LORD

The weekly meeting of the Church of Our Lord Pack opened on Thursday with flag break and the grand howl. A ball-throwing game and a balloon relay were played. Instruction was given in first and second star tests. David Swift, Bobby Reeves and Ronald Ferguson received their first proficiency star. The meeting closed with the grand howl and Cub prayer.

SALT SPRING CUBS

There was a good attendance of Salt Spring Island Cubs at the weekly meeting held last Friday in the Cub Room, Ganges. It was reported that the Cubs had started an interesting scrap-book of flowers, leaves and grasses and are now working for their collector's badge.

Last Sunday, along with the Scouts, Guides and Brownies, they made their church parade at St. George's; they also recently went on an all-day hike up Mount Belcher and last week played a football match in which the Reds defeated Greens, 10-6.

The Cubs expressed regret at losing their cubmaster, Capt. V. C. Best, who, owing to ill health, has been unable to carry on, and the pack wished him a speedy recovery.

BRAZILIAN SHIP SENT TO BOTTOM

Spanish Liner Picks Up Survivors of Parnahyba—Submarines Sink Seven Ships in Week

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 4 (AP).—The Brazilian freighter Parnahyba has been torpedoed and sunk near the Island of Trinidad and a Spanish liner has picked up one lifeboat with twenty-three survivors, it was announced officially today. The Parnahyba was the sixth vessel lost by Brazil, apparently by Axis action, in three months. Two lifeboats and forty-four men are missing.

The Parnahyba, 6,692 tons, was sunk May 1 while bound for New York, the official announcement said.

The Spanish vessel Cabo de Hornos, which made the rescue, searched the vicinity fruitlesaly for the missing men.

The twenty-three survivors, including Captain Raul Francisco Diegoli, were reported well.

SEVEN LOST IN WEEK

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP).—Undersea raiders picked off seven Allied merchant vessels in the Atlantic last week to bring to 157 the announced total of United Nations ships sunk in that area since December 7.

The Axis submarines got six victims off the United States east coast between April 27 and May 3, making that section's war total eighty-five, and one in the Caribbean for a war total there of thirty-eight. No new sinkings were reported in Canadian and South American waters, respectively, fell prey to subs since December 7.

Three of last week's sinkings were of United States ships; one each of British, Panamanian, Swedish and Netherlands registry.

CONSTRUCTION RECORD

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP).—American shipyards set a new ship construction record in April, completing and delivering thirty-six merchant vessels.

In making this announcement today the Maritime Commission said the record exceeded the one-day schedule which was set up for April and brought the record for the first four months of 1942 to 106 merchant ships placed in war service of the United Nations.

WILL NOT HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

St. Mary's Sunday School Will Send Donation to Queen's Canadian Fund Instead

After considering the matter from many angles, it has been decided to change the method of a Sunday school picnic at St. Mary's, Oak Bay. Instead of the annual picnic at Cadboro Bay, to which in past years members of the church have generously contributed, the Sunday school hopes to have an amount equal to the usual cost of the picnic to send to the Queen's Canadian Fund. The customary Sunday school appeal through the church will be made during June on the understanding that all moneys received, together with a donation from the school, will be turned over to the Queen's Fund.

The boys and girls are greatly interested in this undertaking and the knowledge that they will be helping in a very necessary work more than counteracts any disappointment which may be felt in not having their picnic this year.

The annual presentation of diplomas with special added entertainment will be held on June 19, and the flower service on June 21.

King Christian appointed Finance Minister Orla Buhl to succeed Stauning. Buhl will retain his financial post also.

THE LAST COMMENDATION

Here's the latest dope we've received from Manager Dave Nex and Pitcher Bobby Van Horne of the Victorious Dentistos before they pulled out of Montreal after whipping the Canadian basketball champs from the Eastertown:

Well, Joe, it has been a real pleasure to be here in Montreal, and, while playing good basketball is a big part of the pleasure of the Canadian basketball series with the old thing as the proof of every opportunity. We have gone all the way from start to finish. All the boys have been responsible for each Dentistos victory in the Bedford Canadian playoffs and there was no exception when we had a seven-point lead.

Many Preakness Hopefuls Arrive At Pimlico Park

Best Horseflesh on Continent Shipped to Scene of Saturday's $50,000 Event—Shut Out, Kentucky Derby Winner, on Deck—Whirlaway Will Race on Wednesday

BALTIMORE, May 4 (AP)—Without any fanfare Shut Out, the Kentucky Derby winner arrived today at Pimlico where he will try Saturday to pick up another rich purse in the Preakness Stakes.

Two little boys in ragged overalls, a black and white mongrel dog and a handful of photographers and reporters were the only ones on hand at Mount Washington to greet Mrs. Payne Whitney's colt.

In the same car with him was his stablemate, Dem. Dyer, both of them in charge of Lee Cottin, assistant to Trainer Jim M. Gaver. Cottin said both colts stood the trip well.

Also arriving at the Greentree stable were William Woodward's Apache and Mrs. Barbara Delacour's Fair Call, both considered certain starters in the mile and three-sixteenths run for the Preakness, $50,000-added race.

A couple of other stable stars brought it San Again, Whirlaway's Preakness hope which was scratched from the Derby. With him was Whirlaway, the Calumet Farm's big threat in Wednesday's $20,000-added Dixie Handicap.

San Again did not ship well and Trainer Bert A. Jones said he wasn't certain whether he would start him in the Preakness.

By mid-week the Preakness colony would be complete, yet to come in are Albert Sabath's Assab and Ethelbert F. Woodward's Valdina Orphan, which took second and third money respectively in the Derby.

Others expected are Bert F. Whitney, Reginald Wilmath Du Pont, J. S. Fairy, Mahan, R. Sterling, Clark, Curtis and possibly Walter P. Chrysler's Bold Venture.

Eddie Arcaro's decision to stick to Derb Dyer has disappointed Derby rivals although he scored rich Shut Out came in a close second to Dyer. Owners who had expected him to select the Derby winner for the Preakness

FINEST ACREAGE IN OAK BAY
This property comprises three and a-quarter acres, and could be made into at least nine unexpanded homesites. The property is high and slopes to the south with uninterrupted views of the Olympics from the peninsula of the lots.
There is a fine old home on the estate commanding unparalleled views of the Straits and mountains from almost every room. The house has modern conveniences for the person with taste, and ever so little modernizing would make it into a home of which anyone would be justly proud.
To effect an immediate sale, the executive owner has now instructed us to offer this property complete for $8500 in reduction of $2,000; or would sell the house and one acre separately.
We consider this to be one of the finest opportunities we have yet had to offer. We will be pleased to discuss terms and details with any genuine inquiry.

Security Prices Little Changed at New York Mart

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP).—Except for climbing senior utilities and specialties, the stock market today took a rest after four successive rallying sessions.

Advancing tendencies were the rule at the start, with American Telephone up nearly 2 points. This bellwether eventually retreated to finish at its Saturday's final quotation and extreme gains elsewhere were reduced or canceled in many cases at the close.

While scattered favorites were up 1 to 4 points on negligible transactions, price changes on the whole were in minor fractions.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 33.4. Transfers of 259,711 shares compared with 300,680 last Friday and were the smallest for a five-hour stretch since April 22.

Selective bullishness continued in Wall Street despite the lack of outstanding stimulation in the news of war, business and taxes. In the matter of the tax question, the thought persisted that Congress would enact a measure less onerous to industry than proposals put forward by the Treasury.

Broad jumpers among power and light company preferreds included those of Public Service of N.J., West Penn Electric, Columbia Gas and North America.

In the common class gains of a point or so were pinned on Philip Morris, Eastman Kodak, Dow Chemical and J. C. Penney.

Federal Member Is Adjutant of Flyer Squadron

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN SCOTLAND, May 4 (CP).—It isn't every squadron that can claim a member of Parliament as adjutant, but the Spitfire squadron led by Squadron Leader Lloyd Chadburn, of Aurora, Ont., does.

It is the only Canadian squadron with an M.P. as "adj," and he is thirty-three-year-old Flight Lieut. James Sinclair, of Vancouver. One of the most popular members of the squadron, he is Liberal member for Vancouver North, where he was elected in March, 1940, the same month as he received his calling-up papers for service with the R.C.A.F. He volunteered at the start of the war.

Flight Lieut. Sinclair was a mining engineer before his brief political career and his only complaint about his present work is that there isn't enough to keep him busy all day.

"You know," he said with a smile, "sometimes I have so little to do that I feel ashamed to take my leave."

Will Fill Needs Of Industry By Diverting Buses

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Transit Controller George S. Gray said today in a Munitions and Supply Department statement that to take care of increasing transportation needs of war industries, "Buses will have to be diverted from less-essential routes to runs in the crowded areas."

The statement said Mr. Gray, whose office is in Toronto, has arranged with large companies handling war contracts in the Niagara, Toronto and Montreal areas for a canvass of their increased transportation needs. At his suggestion these companies are setting up plant committees which will study the problem.

"We must have a complete picture of what will be needed when these plants are expanded," said Mr. Gray.

Mr. Gray also announced the setting up of four regional offices and appointment of four regional directors, including S. Sigmundson, at (318 Marine Building) Vancouver.

The Associate Transit Controller, Jules Archambault, will remain at the former offices of the controller at Montreal.

FUNERAL TODAY

VANCOUVER, May 4 (CP).—Funeral services will be held here Tuesday for George R. Smith, seventy-two, former superintendent of public works in the Yukon Territory. Mr. Smith died Saturday. He mined at Dominion and Bonanza Creeks in the Yukon during the gold rush days.

The trump jack then was led, and, in order to preserve a heart in dummy to stop the run of diamonds, it was

SHELVE PROPOSAL TO PURCHASE AMBULANCE

At its luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel yesterday, the Victoria Gyro Club decided to shelve for the duration its plan to campaign for an ambulance to be used by the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The club intended that the conveyance should serve the hospital until required by the A.R.P. authorities for emergency use, but President Neil Grant explained that Victoria and Saanich were already conducting drives for the purchase of A.R.P. ambulances and that other considerations made it inadvisable for the club to carry out its project until the war was over.

Major Harold Brown asked members to support the forthcoming drive for funds which the Red Cross is putting on here, and Waldo Skillings urged the Gyros to volunteer for duty as canvassers.

Britain has 150 women's home defence units.

EXPECT NO DECREASE IN COASTAL FISHING

VANCOUVER, May 4 (CP).—Fishing company officials here declare they expect no decrease in the 1942 catch of fish because of withdrawal of Japanese from the fishing industry.

Nearly 700 of the Japanese-owned fishing boats which were seized when Japan entered the war are now in the hands of white fishermen and back in the trade. There are still a number of them to be sold, however.

Murder on the Avenue

By CAROLYN WELLS

(Copyright, 1942, by Carolyn Wells)

CHAPTER XXXI

Haynes pointed. "By that one, opposite to the one I came in at. This room is a sort of hallway, after all. When you come in that door, it seems natural to go out the other."

"You went right downstairs?"

"Yes; I was piqued at my hostess' firing me."

"And who followed you into this room?"

"I've no notion. I went downstairs, meeting people on the way, and when I reached the bar I fell in with some cronies and stayed on for a while."

"You didn't go upstairs again?"

"No."

"Mr. Herrick, then you must have been the last one of these four to go into the coat room for your things."

"I don't think so," Herrick said, "but I am not sure of the time."

"When did you come in here?"

"About half past three."

"How long did you stay?"

"Not long. Mrs. McCleod heard someone coming, and she told me to go."

"Why?"

"There was a sound at the door of the knob turning, and Mrs. McCleod said for me to leave her, so of course I did."

"You didn't return to the room?"

"No, I did not."

"Now," said Raynor, and he looked at Hugh and Emmy as though making a report, "we have heard all these men tell their stories. But one of these men was alone with Mrs. McCleod for some time earlier, and was shut up with her, in the small private elevator which runs from the first floor to her rooms. This seems to me to need some explanation. What about it, Mr. Herrick?"

Brand kept his voice steady.

"Yes, it was I who came up with Mrs. McCleod in her automatic elevator. She asked me to see it. After we got in, the catch jammed and we couldn't get out?"

"How did you get out?"

Brand hesitated. He didn't want to tell about Alma, but this was no time for evasion, so he told the truth.

"She was mischievous," he said. "And she had sprung a catch which held the door shut, for a joke on me."

"A joke?"

"Yes, she thought I would be alarmed."

"Mr. Herrick," Raynor said sternly, "we do not believe your story. Furthermore, our finger print experts have discovered on the chromium frame of the couch on which Mrs. McCleod was found lying, several very distinct marks of your own finger-prints. There are no other prints on the metal, and we are convinced of your guilt. I arrest you for the murder of Alma McCleod."

No heed was paid to his insistent denials, and Brand Herrick was taken away by two policemen.

Herrick, in his cell, was waiting for Clarence Bliss, his partner. Brand had sent for him and was wondering why he didn't come.

"Had to find out a few things," was Bliss's explanation as he came in. "Now no matter how you got into this mess, old man, the thing is, how are we going to get you out?"

"Not easily," Herrick said.

"Who did kill her?"

"It must have been Haynes, I suppose. I'm quite sure his yarn was a lie, but I've no way to prove it."

"You couldn't accuse him then and there?"

"Why, no. I was sort of dazed, Bliss. I'm not sure I told a straight story myself."

"Oh, yes, you did. I've seen Sergeant Colby. Now, who do we want to pull you out of this? Chadwick & Wade?"

"They're McCleod's lawyers."

"Yes, that's why. They'll know all the people concerned and some of the circumstances. And they're good chaps . . . What's McCleod's attitude?"

"He's so busy being sorry for himself he scarcely pays any attention to what's going on. His sister speaks for him, and she knows just what time he went upstairs—you see, the sister and father of McCleod have an apartment just above, and a little private stair up to it. The old man is dying, and so McCleod was up there with him when his wife was killed."

"Did he die?"

"No, he has sinking spells now and then, and anyone may be the last. Hugh McCleod is devoted to his father, but his wife's death has floored him. He didn't listen to Raynor's quiz. He just sat hunched down in a big chair, mumbling, 'It cant be! It can't be!'"

"How old is he?"

"Forty-five, they say, but he looks over fifty. The sister bosses him. She's a Boadicea, or something like that."

"Was she fond of the young wife?"

"Not a bit. She hated her, but pretended friendliness for the sake of appearances."

"Could she have killed the girl?"

"Oh, no. They're Scotch, and she's very loyal to her brother. The two women got along all right, living in separate homes as they did. But Alma had many admirers, and while Hugh was always lenient and disdained to be jealous, it is thought that she had boy friends that he didn't know about."

"Where'd you get all this inside information?"

"Scraps picked up here and there. And, well, Bliss, here's the nuisance. Alma chose to pick me for her special favor just now."

"Which led to your arrest?"

"Just that. I have never made up to her; I didn't care for her at all; she's not my type. I don't say there was any harm in her, but she lived only for excitement, and she craved admiration and flattery, and I think she was piqued because I didn't respond to her hints. At the party she made a dead set for me, and—oh, well, I didn't play up. She grew angry and so did I, and I left her—not only alive, but in a rage. I went out and went downstairs."

"Who went into that room next after you?"

"The murderer, I suppose. Alma was a glamor girl, and any man who came in was in danger of her lures."

Canada's Fishing Industry Enjoys Great Prosperity

MONTREAL, May 4 (CP).—Canada's fisheries are enjoying a degree of prosperity unmatched since the close of the last war, the Royal Bank reported today in its monthly letter.

The letter stated: "As in the earlier struggle, the fishing industry has again demonstrated an ability to adjust itself to new and unfamiliar conditions."

The letter said that dislocations arising from the loss of overseas markets, enforced shifts in the buying habits of consumers, requisition of vessels and shortage of experienced men had been rapidly and effectively surmounted.

The improvement, the letter reported, had been based almost entirely on enhanced prices, but whereas periods of high prices are normally of short duration, the present need for foodstuffs appeared sufficiently urgent to sustain prices at profitable levels for some time to come.

Canadian Flyers on Duty in Scotland Fed Up With Quiet Routine

By LOUIS HUNTER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN SCOTLAND, May 4 (CP).—Scotland's rare beauty is something to be admired, but the war can't be won by gazing at rolling green hills or tree-fringed lochs. That's how airmen of a Canadian Spitfire squadron stationed in Scotland feel.

They are "browned off"—fed up—and want action. Enemy inactivity over this part of Britain has left them virtually jobless.

"We'd like to go to the Middle East," said the squadron commander, Squadron Leader Lloyd Chadburn, twenty-two-year-old pilot from Aurora, Ont. "Even the South of England would be good enough."

Flight Lieut. W. W. Murray, of Woodstock, Ont., a flight commander, felt the same way. Still in his flying boots and Mae West after a cannon-firing test, he said he would go anywhere to "get a little action."

He almost saw his wish fulfilled a little while ago, when the German warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen were making their spectacular escape from Brest.

ORDERED SOUTH

Murray and seven other Canadian airmen were ordered to fly to an air station in the south. When they landed there they were sent out to attack aircraft escorting the vessels.

"We raced almost to the Hook of Holland," he said, adding regretfully that "when we got there we found the warships were several miles farther away." So Murray and his mates had to return home because they didn't have enough gasoline to take them any farther.

In the other flight, commanded by Flight Lieut. P. I. Archer, of Barbados, B.W.I., are P.O. Robert Buchan, of Vancouver, and Flight [illegible]
